BULLETIN 2:30 P. M.
(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The $700,000,000 World War Veterans' Compensation Loan bill became a law this afternoon despite President Hoover's opposition when the Senate joined with the House in overriding the presidential veto.

A huge crowd jammed the galleries when after several hours' debate the Senate voted to pass the bill, the "president's objections to the contrary notwithstanding." The ballot completed enactment of the bill.

The vote was 76 to override Mr. Hoover and 17 voted to uphold his veto.

Once the senate acts, the bill becomes a law, and administrative machinery will be started. It is the hope of many of its advocates, as well as those who voted against it, that only three veterans actually in need will apply for loans.

Debate Is Started.

The senate began debate on the question of overriding the president as soon as it met, after the technical requirement that the veto message be read had been settled last night.

Senators Reed (R) of Pennsylvania and Smoot (R) of Utah were to lead the forlorn hope of sustaining the president, but at best the debate was expected to occupy no more than a few hours.

In the house the president gained 40 votes over the original bill. In the senate it was conceded he might gain a few. The house vote on passage with 363 to 39, and to override the veto it was 328 to 79.

The senate passed the bill by a vote of 72 to 12. With the same proportion voting today the bonus advocates could lose 14 votes and still the bill would become a law.

No Delay Planned.

An attempt was made to get immediate action in the senate shortly after the action of the house. Sen. Johnson (R) of California interrupted debate on the second deficiency bill and unsuccessfully sought to have the veto message laid before the senate.

Sen. Reed had sought to get a definite time to vote with a limitation of 15 minutes to each senator, but Sen. LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin, objected. As it stands there is no limit to the debate, but there was no indication of a disposition to unduly delay the inevitable action of the senate.

Again, we have another sign of spring! Anthony Pagley of 574 East Long avenue reports to PA News that his attention was taken out the back window of his home this morning about 9 o'clock, by the cheery song of a robin, perched up on a tree in his yard.

U. S. weather bureau statistics for the 24 hour period ending at nine o'clock this morning follow:

MAKING PROGRESS ON PERRY HIGHWAY BRIDGES

This unusual weather that has prevailed this winter has made it possible to continue construction work and the contractors on the bridges on the Perry Highway have made the most of it. Work has continued steadily and by latter April or early May they should be opened to traffic and the detours abandoned.

The bridge near Rock Springs is not quite as far along as the double bridge near Grant City. Some of the false work has been put up on the Rock Springs bridge, and part of the floor poured. Steel workers are busy and the false work and railings will all be erected within a short time.

On the double bridge or two small bridges which cross the Muddy Creek and the Western Allegheny railroad, the false work is about completed, and they are ready for the railings and floor.

The approaches must be filled and laid before the bridges can be used, and the balance of the work will take sixty days probably, providing the weather continues fine.

Safety Director Schofield Directs Raid That Nets $100,000 In Liquors

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—The Ultra-exclusive Philadelphia club, famous as the most exclusive in the nation with its 550 membership of Philadelphia's social elite, entertained Safety Director I. B. Schofield a month ago, it became known today following the seizure of $100,000 of fine pre-war liquors by the director's raiders in the lockers of some of the members late yesterday.

The director was sponsored by Col. Alexander Biddle, members of the club revealed, asserting it had been a social error. A few days later Schofield's men started a checkup on possible violations of the liquor laws at the club. After 20 days of probing the Swank clubhouse was invaded by a rookie detective and four aides with a search and seizure warrant. Three hours were spent by the invaders in opening lockers and searching every possible place.

WOMAN DEFENDANT
WEEPS IN COURT

(International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 27.—Further testimony regarding the bridge game argument in which John G. Bennett was shot to death by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, was awaited today by an expectant courtroom audience.

Charles Hoffman, as the first witness called by prosecutor James R. Page, told the jury yesterday how a quarrel arose between the Bennetts during a contract bridge game in their apartment when the wife chided her husband for failing to make her bid four spades good.

Bennett dealt the hand and bid one spade, Hoffman explained. "I raised it to two diamonds," the witness explained. "Mrs. Bennett jumped to four spades then Mrs. Hoffman passed, Bennett passed. I doubted. Bennett went set two tricks."

Bickering ensued between the Bennetts, he said, and Bennett answered his wife's charge that he was a "bum bridge player" by slapping her. The defendant then became hysterical, he said.

Hoffman said he and his wife (Continued On Page Twenty-three)

William H. Frazer Sticks To Story Woman Was Killed Accidentally

GIVES DETAILS OF TRIP IN MACHINE

Tried Suicide But Lacked Nerve—Autopsy Shows Woman Shot In Head

(International News Service)
NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 27.—"I loved her and had no reason to kill her."

That was the statement of William H. Frazer of Rahway, N. J., who was to arrive here today from Raleigh, N. C., in the custody of Prosecutor Abe David of Union county to face a charge of murdering Mrs. Phoebe Stader.

His immediate indictment for the murder was expected.

Although an autopsy showed Mrs. Stader was shot in the back of the head, Frazer insisted to officers that her death came when a gun he "happened to have" in his car "went off accidentally, somehow."

Before taking the train in Raleigh, Frazer admitted he had killed Mrs. Stader but that it was an accident and he had "not meant to."

On Way To Florida.

In his story he revealed that ten days ago Mrs. Stader had decided to go with him to Florida and they started in his car. Near Suffern, N. J., he said he stopped the car when he "got nervous," thought of his gun and that while he was getting it out of the back seat it was discharged, killing his companion.

Frazer said he drove all the way to Virginia with the body of the woman in the car and that one night in Washington he parked the car with the body in it on a street and slept there.

He said that near a thicket close to Dowell, Va., he stopped the car after resuming his trip, cut off the dead woman's clothes and burned them. Then he left the nude body in the thicket. He said he tried to (Continued On Page Two)

Senate Passes Bill Providing For Post Office

Is Amended By Senate And Conference Will Be Necessary On Measure

EXPECT FINAL ACTION AT ONCE

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent Of The New Castle News
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—Final legislative action on the Second Deficiency Bill, which includes in its authorizations, provisions for the construction of a new post office for New Castle, Pa., at a cost not to exceed $25,000 was passed by the senate last evening.

The measure has already received the approval of the house, but it was amended by the senate and now goes to conference between the two houses, before it can be presented to President Hoover for his signature.

Final action by congress on the matter is expected within the next few days, after which the bill will be presented to President Hoover and become a law.

The signing of the bill will permit post office officials to go ahead with actual plans for the construction of the new building here, definite plans for which are eagerly awaited by New Castle residents.

Killers Escape From Scene In Stolen Car—Eye Witness Informs Police

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—Frank J. McGreevy, proprietor of a barbecue stand midway between McKeesport and Irwin, was shot down and killed by one of three bandits today as McGreevy hastened to comply with a "hands up" order.

"Don't shoot. My money is in my hip pocket. Take it," McGreevy hands high in air, told the bandit covering him. The thug reached for McGreevy's hip pocket, discovered a revolver, jerked it from the pocket and shot McGreevy through the heart at point blank range.

Killers Escape

McGreevy slumped to the floor, dead. The three men escaped in a stolen automobile.

The bandits, all youthful, drove up to the barbecue stand early this morning. Customers were seated in a room adjoining a lunchroom and the trio delayed giving their orders for food.

McGreevy, becoming suspicious, slipped from the stand to obtain the license number of their car. He gave the number to his wife, Annie.

The shooting occurred after Mrs. McGreevy and the couple's two children, Donald, 8, and Frank, Jr., 14, retired. John A. Keplar, eye witness to the holdup and slaying, called police after the men fled.

The automobile in which the men escaped had been stolen last night from D. B. Caldwell, police said. Caldwell's wife is a sister of James M. Clark, director of public safety.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—"The Vivian Gordon murder mystery"—destined to be another of New York City's big crime cases—today plunged the police department into a whirl of activity. Two men were taken into custody, and other important developments were impending.

Capone Irked By Police Escort

Famous Gangster Chief Aroused By Constant Police Protection

MAY SOON KNOW FATE IN COURT

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Al Capone, irked by his constant police escort, returned to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court today with every expectation that he would know before nightfall whether or not he is to go to jail for contempt of court.

Al was visibly irritated by the police attention paid to him today. As he drove towards the Federal building a police squad car picked up his machine south of the loop and escorted the gang chief to the Federal building.

Capone leaped from the machine and scolding the private freight elevator. He had been reserved for his exclusive use he went to the sixth floor where Judge Wilkerson's court is located in one of the public lifts. The detectives trooped behind him.

As he settled into his chair in the court room Al said angrily: "I don't need all this watching. I'm just like any other citizen."

Rents Room But Leaves Soon Afterward With Many Valuable Articles

A sneak thief, posing as desiring to rent a room, about 6:30 o'clock last night, was shown to a room at the home of Fred DeJone, 1242 East Washington street, which he rented. He apparently remained in the room until about 7:30 o'clock when he left. Shortly afterward it was discovered that a number of valuable articles of jewelry had disappeared with him.

Among the articles missing were a lady's white gold wrist watch, a white gold compact, five valuable ladies' rings and a laveller.

The thief is described as being a young man about 22 years of age, five feet eight inches in height weighing 140 pounds, and wearing a dark overcoat, dark hat and black sweater. Detective John Young and Officer Charles Longstreth made the investigation today.

The aldermen of Hitchville Prairie were in solemn deliberation. One alderman, gaining the floor, took occasion to call into the tactics of a certain public officer and in the end wound up with some highly complimentary statements concerning him. The meeting was fully "covered" by the two town newspapers. One of the newspapers, The Evening Blast, thought enough of the speech and the attack to make a special display of it in the following day's edition.

When that paper came out it carried the speech of the alderman virtually verbatim. The officer thus attacked, upon reading the verbatim report in The Blast, became very angry. It was one thing to be attacked on the floor of the council; it was another thing to have that attack reproduced for the entire town. The officer, therefore, filed suit for libel.

RECORD THROG AT OPENING OF BIG AUTO SHOW

the doors were finally closed for the evening.

The models which are on display this year are the finest ever produced by the manufacturers, long sweeping lines having been introduced into all body designs by the makers.

Show Most Complete
At 8 o'clock, the Fashion Revue, which was produced on an elevated stage in the center of the dining room, held the attention of the spectators.

Here pretty young models displayed the newest things in the fashions for the ladies, and a score or more models, formed a procession on and off the stage for an hour. The very newest things to wear were shown from the apparel of the tiny little tots to the automobile for the matron.

The automobile show itself is most complete, sixty-four different cars of all makes and styles being shown, and the prices range from modest figures into real money.

The committee in charge of the exhibition has spared no pains to make the show as complete as possible, and have arranged for something in the way of entertainment during every minute of the show.

The doors to the show were opened at noon today, and the exhibition will be continued this evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

The result netted the raiders about everything fancy it is possible to have in liquors. Five patrol wagon loads in all were hauled away. There were more than 600 quart bottles, many of them full.

R. S. Scorninien, the club steward, was arrested and released on $800 bail for a hearing Monday. The raid was staged while the city was still agog over the sensational raid on 1 exclusive Manufacturer's club led by the director in person just 12 hours before. Between 500 and 800 quarts of fancy liquors were seized from the lockers of the members in this raid and August Bolli, the manager was arrested.

The raid was the most sensational staged here since M. J. Gen. Smedley D. Butler led his special dry squad in a raid on the Ritz-Carlton hotel a block away when he was safely director here five years ago.

The World, The Evening World and The Sunday World have been sold to the Scripps-Howard interests, owners of The New York Telegram.

The three papers will be merged with The New York Telegram under the title New York World-Telegram.

It is the intention of the trustees of the newspaper trust to set aside from the proceeds of the sale the sum of $500,000 to be distributed among employees under the terms of a plan to be announced later.

Carpet Cleaner, Snakes Or Whatever You Ask For

Offhand, you might recommend it to the "tail story club," but tail story or not, Mrs. Abram P. Shaffer, 1009 Delaware avenue, will tell you she forgot about tail stories and everything else when she removed an old bottle of carpet cleaner from a kitchen shelf in her home this week, opened the sealed lid and found inside a small garter snake.

"No, it didn't scare me—but I was surprised," Mrs. Shaffer said. The bottle, bought from a cleaning agency over a year ago, had never been opened. That's the mysterious thing about it.

"When I secured the cleaner, I placed it on a shelf. There it remained until early this week I went to get it, just why I don't know. I had no cleaning to do.

"The bottom of the jar was covered with a black color, but I suppose it was sediment. The sealed cork was tight, making it quite hard to get off. Finally it opened, and my shaking the bottle had uncorked the baby reptile and I could plainly see what it was.

"I called my oldest boy to take it out. I don't know whether it was alive or not but evidently it wasn't."

THE SMALL TOWN AND DEPRESSION

THE devil may have made the small town, but it is a good place to be when times are hard and the world seems all wrong. At least, there are worse places to be in the year 1931.

It is not the small town that has felt most keenly the business depression and unemployment, with their attendant business failures and physical suffering. "Hard times" strike hardest in the big cities.

Bread lines do not form in the small town. No one suffers because everyone knows everybody and everybody takes care of everyone. The vagrant, the personification of unemployment, passes through on his way from city to city but he carries not. All in all, the town and the town folks go on almost as though nothing has happened.

How different is the picture presented by the big city. Thousands to be fed, clothed and housed. Suffering and hardship everywhere because nobody knows anybody else and one can starve to death without the neighbors knowing anything about it until the coroner arrives.

Nor is rural America troubled with crime waves, which in the city follow in the train of unemployment. The jobless flock into the big centers of population, and failing to find what they seek they turn to preying upon those who have more than they. This is not one of the common worries of one-man police departments.

The big city, which pined the country when prosperity reigned, now envies the small town and cross-roads.

IMMIGRATION CONTROL AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Congress has given a vast amount of attention to various methods of unemployment relief upon which there are wide differences of opinion. Most of these measures are very expensive. There is, however, one method of affording very substantial relief without expense, namely immigration control. On this, the country is pretty generally agreed. Legislation on that line is apparently being opposed by certain special interests.

Our people have got the impression that immigration is permanently checked by legislation as it stands. This is not so. The administration has temporarily checked immigration by means of an unexpected interpretation of existing law, an interpretation that can have only limited and temporary effect. Now that there are practically no new jobs available, immigrants are kept off as liable to become public charges. As soon, however, as business revives, jobs will again be offered and will often be given to foreigners in preference to Americans, as has been the case in the past. An overloaded labor market will again result.

Under the law as it stands, aliens in unlimited numbers from the western hemisphere, and in excessive numbers from Europe, will have to be admitted again to compete with our own people for whatever jobs are offered. That seems exactly what a certain body of interests is working for. They have recently voiced their objections to statutory limitations of Mexican and West Indian immigration by this congress.

The people at large want to have full protection of the American standard of living, and not partial protection. The present status of the law which these interests seek to perpetuate merely substitutes one kind of low-priced labor for another. Industries throughout most of the country are unfavorably affected by the resulting competition. There is not much time left. The question now to the fore is whether congress really means business in giving our own people assured protection against the further overloading of our labor market.

FEWER ONE-ROOM SCHOOLS

In the modern school system the trend is toward elimination of the "little red schoolhouse." These little one-room schools of the rural districts, which were so large a factor in the development of American civilization and so generally held in affection, are slipping behind in the march of progress. Each year witnesses abandonment of 5,000 of them.

Consolidated schools are supplanting the one-room school, each one of the former taking the place of several of the latter. Though great credit is due the "little red schoolhouse," it was not as efficient an educational machine as this new institution with its supervisor and teachers trained in universities and normal schools, the most modern of school buildings and equipment, and educational standards on a par with those of the large town. The one-room school served its purpose well, but its successor is more in keeping with the demands of modern times.

Consolidated schools are possible only because of improved year-round highways, greater rural prosperity and the awakening of rural America to the need of education. Each of these imposing structures is a monument to the desire for knowledge and appreciation of the value of education which are evident among people living close to the soil.

DRIVE ON GASOLINE TAX DELINQUENTS

Failure of more than a hundred garages in the vicinity of Philadelphia to submit returns to the commonwealth on their gasoline sales has resulted in closing their places. The drive is part of a state-wide campaign to recover a delinquency amounting, it is said, to $15,000,000.

Before the present law was passed the state suffered heavy losses from irresponsible dealers and unsatisfactory bookkeeping. Under the new arrangement the gasoline stations were bonded and a percentage commission was allowed the retailer for taxes that he collected. Evidently the reform has not achieved all that was expected of it. Recovery at the source has been proposed in bills submitted to the present legislature.

Certainly Pennsylvania should find some way of preventing the laxness which has come to light in administering this law. The gasoline levy is now a fundamental of our tax structure. The consumer, seldom evades it. The middleman ought to be equally held to a strict account.

It is easy to reconcile yourself to modernism when you reflect that nobody now recites "Curfew."

Some of us can remember when a fellow who was full of ginger wasn't paralyzed from the hips down.

There's nothing like having a young graduate in the bosom of the family to bring the unemployment crisis home.

Now some great scientist says the future controls conditions today. He must be paying a lot of installments.

Chicago is reforming. They are now throwing eggs at one another in their mayoralty campaign. But then they may be saving the "pine-apples" for desert.

EVENT OF THE WEEK.
FLEM PRODDY EXPLAINS HOW THAT CITY FELLER GAVE MYRTLE WORTLE A HUG AND BROKE HER RIB!

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:48. Sun rises tomorrow 6:38.

This new safety responsibility law advocated by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation looks like a good thing to us. No man ought to be permitted to drive on the highways who does not carry insurance to pay for damage he might create or who does not have the money in his own right. Too many motorists have their machines banged up by some irresponsible from whom you can't collect a cent.

Hindus fall in the dust when they meet a superior, but sometimes in this country, it is the supposed superiors who fall in the dust, especially when they put on too much dog.

Confession is not only good for the soul, but lots of true story magazines will pay ten cents a word for it.

If it hurt you to spend money you can't go very far in business.

Today's Storyette.

Two friends went to see a billiard game between two well known professionals. After the match had been in progress for a while one said to the other, "What do you call this game, Fred?"

"Billiard," Fred replied.

"Well, what do they call that game which we play at home, then?"

A Boston woman has a sign in her window which reads: "Public Grandmother; She Mends, Sews and Darns. Yours by the Minute." The public needs a lot of grandmothers like that and she'll find in cities almost as many granddaughters as grandsons for customers. Darning almost is a lost art. Nowadays they either wear 'em holes and all, or buy new.

A shiftless man hates the efficiency of an alarm clock more than anything else in all the world.

"Oh, I saw a big fish—that long—under the ice."

"Nonsense, my dear! I'm quite sure it was your reflection."

Next to a visit from a "scientific" salesman, nothing is so annoying as to step on a wad of wet chewing gum.

Old Bottle Foretells Weather.

An old French peasant has what looks like a mixture of red sand and a yellowish liquid in a tightly sealed bottle known to be at least 300 years old. As the bottle seems the only infallible weather prophet in existence, it is puzzling French scientists. But its owner will not permit it to be opened, fearing that exposure to air may destroy its peculiar properties. At the approach of rain the solid particles in the bottle gather in round clusters. When snow is coming white flakes form in the bottle. If hail is on the way the mixture becomes viscous like molasses. A similar bottle owned by the old Frenchman's grandfather burst with a loud report 40 years ago when a September hailstorm was followed by a snowfall that turned into a light drizzle. That was too much of a weather mixture for a prognosticating bottle to stand.

No father should cuss a son who brings a bride from college. It might have been a saxophone.

"Business is still pretty bad, dear. If you could economize a little in dresses—wear something plainer—"

"Certainly, darling, I'll order some plainer dresses first thing in the morning!"

About the worst disappointment some of these soapbox orators could have would be to have to go to work.

If you happen to be sitting at home and wish you had some good book or magazine to read, read the dictionary. This advice comes from Mrs. Harriet Treadwell, Chicago school principal. You will find it a bit disconnected, she says, but very interesting, and there is no quicker way of improving one's command of English. For instance "amen" is pronounced "a-men" in regular speech, but "ah-men" in religious and dramatic speech; also "every" is a word of three syllables, not two, and "been" is pronounced "bean". Mrs. Treadwell says it took her a year to pronounce "been" as if it were spelled "bean", but if you intend to speak good English you must.

As the sun outshines the moon, so does a good example outshine good advice.

Wealth has often brought unhappiness but I don't know that poverty can boast of being the purveyor of joy.

A grocer man one autumn day sat smiling 'neath his glasses. When came a pitcher and a boy, To get some new molasses.

The grocer, smiling, pulled the bung. No sirup could be richer.

"Now, sonny, where's your dime?" Quoth he, "It's in de pitcher."

A kind lady once told a tramp that if she thought she could trust him she would give him work cleaning the henhouse. He said: "Dear lady, you need not fear my stealing your chickens. I worked in a bathhouse for two years and never took a bath."

The Good Old Days.—The modern girls daily doze usually consists of eleven oranges and one bottle of gin.

A radical is a man who hasn't been given enough responsibility to make his discreet.

"Why don't you marry Adolph?" "He's a Freethinker. He doesn't believe there is a hell!"

"Then you should marry him. You can then convince him of his error!"

The gangsters who take their erstwhile friends "for a ride," usually take them out in fine, high priced cars. That's what I would call showing a delightful consideration to the end.

Why Branches Are So Healthy.

An eastern girl at the rodeo, discussing the branding of horses, asked: "Is it a fact that all horses have to be vaccinated before they can be used?"

Lots of New Castle voters might take an object lesson from a Nevada miner, who walked 175 miles to register so he could vote at the last election. Some New Castle people aren't interested enough to walk across the street.

"Willie, your clothes are wet. You have been in the water again."

"Yes, mother, I went in to save Charlie Jones."

"My noble darling! Did you jump in after him?"

"No, mother. I jumped first so as to be there when he fell in."

The plaintiff in a mayhem case in New York was released after her accuser had been freed on a charge of throwing acid on her. That would be enough to make anyone want to bite another.

Berlin residents, we presume, must for the most part, assert that husbands should help their wives about the house. We know some husbands here in New Castle who would be sporting black eyes if they didn't.

If he merely cooks a slice of meat, he's a cook. If he adds so much spice you can't tell what it is, he's a chef.

The new cars seem to have every convenience except a trap door in the top through which you can exit after parking between the lines.

Take It Or Leave It.—With so many fine electrical instruments on the markets nowadays, the average pianist is ashamed to be seen playing the piano by hand.

Whether a Congressman should vote as he thinks or as his constituents think depends on whether you agree with him or his constituents.

IS REVENGE SWEET?

Is revenge sweet? I've heard that it is, and I used to believe that it is not only sweet but necessary. And many a time I've taken revenge, too. Angered, I have flamed up like gasoline touched by a burning match, and I have said bitter things—and have then been ashamed to erase my words with kinder words and decent acts. It's strange what cruel words come through the lips when we are angry and how powerless we are to stop their utterance. You've noticed that, too.

It's strange, too, how in our minds and in our speech we reject that dark religion of revenge, but swing back to it in our moments of passionate anger, helpless before the storm. But I have practiced swift revenge, but I have never believed in it—and most of us, I am sure, are alike in that. Even though we take it, we do not defend it.

Turning the pages of a book I came upon quotations about revenge, and read them. Lord Bacon, who took his revenges frequently enough, called revenge "a kind of wild justice." Byron, who slashed out, too, when he was hurt, wrote "Revenge is lost in agony, and wild remorse to rage succeeds." John Milton, often peevish in his blindness, said, "Revenge, at first though sweet, bitter ere long, back on itself recoils." And Juvenal, the Roman, left us this: "Revenge is sweeter than life itself. So think fools."

It's no difficult trick, putting words together. But those are more than graceful phrases. Bacon and Byron and Milton and Juvenal all knew, out of their bitter experiences, that revenge does not work. It is like the mirage that the stumbling lost ones see before them in a desert—a green land where there is food in plenty and the coolest of water tumbling from rock to rock and washing to bitterness from our hearts.

But you stagger toward it and put forth a hand to take your revenge and find life more dreadful than before. You've had your wild and terrible moment of joy, but it has not refreshed you. And you chew vainly on the dry and horrible morsels of Getting Even.

We KNOW that revenge is not sweet. Why do we let it fool us again and again and again? Do we imagine we must take revenge as a duty, even though we know it is folly? "So think fools."

"WHITE FACES" TRICKS
Julian Dubuque, after whom the city of Dubuque, Iowa, is named, was a French-Canadian miner who mined lead about a century and a half ago in the region which is now northeastern Iowa. At that time lead was so abundant there that cubes of the lead ore called "galena" were found exposed on the very surface of the ground.

Dubuque had trouble with the Indians on various occasions. Once, while he was camping on the banks of what is now Catfish Creek, just south of the present city of Dubuque, the Indians surrounded him and threatened to kill him. When the darkness of night came on, the canny miner poured some turpentine on the waters of the creek and ignited it as it floated slowly toward the Mississippi River.

When the frightened Indians saw what they thought was water burning they fled in disorder, and did not again molest Dubuque for a long time.

He carried it around for years. As though it were a thing to keep. At night before he went to sleep He'd take the old grudge by the ears And shake it in his memory That it was still alive to see.

Country Reveals Conflict
As To Finances Of Bonus Bill

Variety In Views Covers Condition Of Treasury, Effect On Business, Political Considerations And Obligations To Service Men

Discussion of the soldier bonus bill, raising the loan value of certificates to 50 per cent of the face value, reveals differences of opinion as to the effect of the expected total on the economic condition of the country. There is uncertainty as to the number of ex-service men that would take advantage of the opportunity and as to the ease with which the payments could be met by the Treasury. Some opponents of the measure contend that overwhelming votes in the two houses of Congress represented the influence of a minority among citizens, although others emphasize the obligation of the country to its soldiers.

Viewing the relation of the payments to war among the nations, the ST. LOUIS TIMES states: "War has become a business and a bad one. It is economically unsound and insensible. Now that we are recognizing these simple but long obscured facts we should also be fair to the men who do the nation's work in carrying out that nation's unwise will. And as soon as this or any other country pays each of its soldiers what his time and risk are worth it will find that was far more expensive than has hitherto been shown; too costly for the meager gains that show in the balance sheet of history."

Referring to action in Congress "in spite of Secretary Mellon's warning," the CHATTANOOGA NEWS doubts that "the loans to veterans will disturb the situation," and is convinced that "the compromise is a happy solution." The KALAMAZOO GAZETTE believes that "while political consideration invariably plays their part in the treatment of veterans' aid proposals it seems quite possible that in this case the Representatives have weighed Mr. Mellon's arguments carefully and found them wanting." That paper adds: "If the veterans were to make no more use of the new loan value than they have made of the present privilege, the outstanding loans would be increased by only about $30,000,000. And that sum is but slightly more than the Treasury is already obligated to make."

"It is evident," thinks the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, "that half the number of veterans in the country prefer to hold their certificates as endowment policies, and of the remainder a large number have requested only temporary loans, and those somewhat below the maximum allowed. It is reasonable to suppose that an increase in the loan value will not greatly increase the total number of borrowers or the amount of loans to only temporary borrowers." The RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH quotes fiscal experts as saying that "this will mean an increase in taxes," but adds: "Congress was in humor to grant in full the value of the certificates; half of that amount in loans, they thought, was getting the government off easy. In any event the bill seems good in law," concludes The Times-Dispatch.

"We believe," says the ST. LOUIS POST-DEMOCRAT, "Mr. Hoover unduly exaggerated the effect that this bill will have on the country. He speaks of what the Government would have to raise for the veterans as a 'liability.' This liability was assumed when the adjusted compensation act was passed in 1924. The money then allocated to ex-soldiers is a Government obligation. The present bill creates no new obligation. It does not propose giving away anything that has not been given away before. All it does is to make it possible for the ex-soldiers to borrow more money on reasonable terms; in other words, it does for them what the Government has already done for the farmers. The Government cannot lose by the transaction."

The measure has been supported, "against the warning of the President," according to the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, "in the belief that the American Legion and the force of public opinion will restrain an unnecessary demand upon the Federal Treasury and that the service men will once more evidence their patriotism by restraining a ruinous raid on Government finances. The measure can be supported, in the face of the figures presented by the President, only in the belief that it will be used for need relief and not abused in a general rush to 'cash in.'"

Possibility that business will be benefited by the bonus distribution is suggested by the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER and the SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER. The MERIDIAN STAR "is glad to see the veterans get a 'break'" and offers the comment: "Everybody, seemingly, has reaped some benefit from the great world madness save the boys who bared their breasts to sacrifice and death." The ALLEN-TOWN MORNING CALL holds that the measure is "better than existing relief and is expected to take care of the most needy cases." The LYNCHBURG NEWS declares that "hosts of the men to whom the obligation is due are in sore need of money with which to support themselves and their families."

Holding that the bill "is a poor thing at best," the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR says as to its provisions: "If the measure had been confined to the needy, and had provided for the payment of fifty per cent of the face value of the bonus certificates held by them, instead of a loan, it would have been a much fairer proposition for the veterans and for the country. As it is, the needy veterans who borrow fifty per cent of the face value of their bonus certificates and are compelled to pay four and one-half per cent compounded annually, on their

ARE YOU QUITTING?

There are times when you feel like giving up.

The struggle of years against odds has made most of your life one of hard work and disappointment. So little advance financially has taken the pep out of you.

Somewhat living expenses have kept up with salary or wage increase.

You don't blame yourself—but who is to blame if you are not?

If you had checked your requirements each year, your bank account might have increased.

But it is easier to shift the blame, than weigh your own weakness. True you have pinched in some ways and then expended your surplus.

That has been your greatest trouble, that you could not see a sizable sum in the bank without planning to use it.

What does it matter if you save only to spend in some other way. You are not consistent in your efforts.

Your will is not strong enough to keep an increasing sum over and above expenses.

When you develop your backbone you will stand by your resolutions.

Now you contemplate being a "quitter"—and want to give up.

Are you going to allow this thought to master you?

Under the new arrangement the gasoline stations were bonded and a percentage commission was allowed the retailer for taxes that he collected. Evidently the reform has not achieved all that was expected of it. Recovery at the source has been proposed in bills submitted to the present legislature.

Certainly Pennsylvania should find some way of preventing the laxness which has come to light in administering this law. The gasoline levy is now a fundamental of our tax structure. The consumer, seldom evades it. The middleman ought to be equally held to a strict account.

EVENT OF THE WEEK.
FLEM PRODDY EXPLAINS HOW THAT CITY FELLER GAVE MYRTLE WORTLE A HUG AND BROKE HER RIB!

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:48. Sun rises tomorrow 6:38.

This new safety responsibility law advocated by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation looks like a good thing to us. No man ought to be permitted to drive on the highways who does not carry insurance to pay for damage he might create or who does not have the money in his own right. Too many motorists have their machines banged up by some irresponsible from whom you can't collect a cent.

Hindus fall in the dust when they meet a superior, but sometimes in this country, it is the supposed superiors who fall in the dust, especially when they put on too much dog.

Confession is not only good for the soul, but lots of true story magazines will pay ten cents a word for it.

If it hurt you to spend money you can't go very far in business.

Today's Storyette.

Two friends went to see a billiard game between two well known professionals. After the match had been in progress for a while one said to the other, "What do you call this game, Fred?"

"Billiard," Fred replied.

"Well, what do they call that game which we play at home, then?"

A Boston woman has a sign in her window which reads: "Public Grandmother; She Mends, Sews and Darns. Yours by the Minute." The public needs a lot of grandmothers like that and she'll find in cities almost as many granddaughters as grandsons for customers. Darning almost is a lost art. Nowadays they either wear 'em holes and all, or buy new.

A shiftless man hates the efficiency of an alarm clock more than anything else in all the world.

"Oh, I saw a big fish—that long—under the ice."

"Nonsense, my dear! I'm quite sure it was your reflection."

Next to a visit from a "scientific" salesman, nothing is so annoying as to step on a wad of wet chewing gum.

Old Bottle Foretells Weather.

An old French peasant has what looks like a mixture of red sand and a yellowish liquid in a tightly sealed bottle known to be at least 300 years old. As the bottle seems the only infallible weather prophet in existence, it is puzzling French scientists, but its owner will not permit it to be opened, fearing the exposure to air may destroy its peculiar properties. At the approach of rain the solid particles in the bottle gather in round clusters. When snow is coming white flakes form in the bottle. If hail is on the way the mixture becomes viscous like molasses. A similar bottle owned by the old Frenchman's grandfather burst with a loud report 40 years ago when a September hailstorm was followed by a snowfall that turned into a light drizzle. That was too much of a weather mixture for a prognosticating bottle to stand.

No father should cuss a son who brings a bride from college. It might have been a saxophone.

"Business is still pretty bad, dear. If you could economize a little in dresses—wear something plainer—"

"Certainly, darling. I'll order some plainer dresses first thing in the morning!"

About the worst disappointment some of these soapbox orators could have would be to have to go to work.

If you happen to be sitting at home and wish you had some good book or magazine to read, read the dictionary. This advice comes from Mrs. Harriet Treadwell, Chicago school principal. You will find it a bit disconnected, she says, but very interesting, and there is no quicker way of improving one's command of English. For instance "amen" is pronounced "a-men" in regular speech, but "ah-men" in religious and dramatic speech; also "every" is a word of three syllables, not two, and "been" is pronounced "bean." Mrs. Treadwell says it took her a year to pronounce "bean" as if it were spelled "bean," but if you intend to speak good English you must.

As the sun outlines the moon, so does a good example outshine good advice.

Wealth has often brought unhappiness but I don't know that poverty can boast of being the purveyor of joy.

A grocer man one autumn day sat smiling 'neath his glasses. When came a pitcher and a boy. To get some new molasses. The grocer, smiling, pulled the bung. No sirup could be richer. "Now, sonny, where's your dime?" Quoth he, "It's in de pitcher."

A kind lady once told a tramp that if she thought she could trust him she would give him work cleaning the henhouse. He said: "Dear lady, you need not fear my stealing your chickens. I worked in a bathhouse for two years and never took a bath."

"No, mother. I jumped first so as to be there when he fell in."

The plaintiff in a mayhem case in New York was released after her accuser had been freed on a charge of throwing acid on her. That would be enough to make anyone want to bite another.

IS REVENGE SWEET?

Is revenge sweet? I've heard that it is, and I used to believe that it is not only sweet but necessary. And many a time I've taken revenge, too. Angered. I have flamed up like gasoline touched by a burning match, and I have said bitter things—and have then been ashamed to erase my words with kinder words and do not act. It's strange what cruel words come through the lips when we are angry and how powerless we are to stop our utterance. You've noticed that, too.

It's strange, too, how in our minds and in our speech we reject that dark religion of revenge, but swing back to it in our moments of passionate anger, helpless before the storm. I have practiced swift revenge, but I have never believed in it—and most of us, I am sure, are alike in that. Even though we take it, we do not defend it.

Turning the pages of a book I came upon quotations about revenge, and read them. Lord Bacon, who took his revenge frequently enough, called revenge "a kind of wild justice." Byron, who slashed out too when he was hurt, wrote "Revenge is lost in agony, and wild remorse to rage succeeds." John Milton, often peevish in his blindness, said, "Revenge, at first thought sweet, bitter ere long, back on itself recoils." And Juvenal, the Roman, left us this: "Revenge is sweeter than life itself. So think fools."

It's no difficult trick, putting words together. But those are more than graceful phrases. Bacon and Byron and Milton and Juvenal all knew, out of their bitter experiences, that revenge does not work. It is like the mirage that the stumbling lost ones see before them in a desert—a green land where there is food in plenty and the coolest of water tumbling from rock to rock and washing to bitterness from our hearts.

But you stagger toward it and put forth a hand to take your revenge and find life more dreadful than before. You've had your wild and terrible moment of joy, but it has not refreshed you. And you chew vainly on the dry and horrible morsels of Getting Even.

WE KNOW that revenge is not sweet. Why do we let it fool us again and again and again? Do we imagine we must take revenge as a duty, even though we know it is folly? "So think fools."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

"WHITE FACES" TRICKS

Julian Dubuque, after whom the city of Dubuque, Iowa, is named, was a French-Canadian miner who mined lead about a century and a half ago in the region which is now northeastern Iowa. At that time, lead was so abundant there that cubes of the lead ore called "galena" were found exposed on the very surface of the ground.

Dubuque had trouble with the Indians on various occasions. Once, while he was camping on the banks of what is now Catfish Creek, just south of the present city of Dubuque, the Indians surrounded him and threatened to kill him. When the darkness of night came on, the canny miner poured some turpentine on the waters of the creek and ignited it as it floated slowly toward the Mississippi River.

When the frightened Indians saw what they thought was water burning they fled in disorder, and did not again molest Dubuque for a long time.

Country Reveals Conflict As To Finances Of Bonus Bill

Variety In Views Covers Condition Of Treasury, Effect On Business, Political Considerations And Obligations To Service Men

Discussion of the soldier bonus bill, raising the loan value of certificates to 50 per cent of the face value, reveals differences of opinion as to the effect of the expected total on the economic condition of the country. There is uncertainty as to the number of ex-service men that would take advantage of the opportunity and as to the ease with which the payments could be met by the Treasury. Some opponents of the measure contend that overwhelming votes in the two houses of Congress represented the influence of a minority among citizens, although others emphasize the obligation of the country to its soldiers.

Viewing the relation of the payments to war among the nations, the ST. LOUIS TIMES states: "War has become a business and a bad one. It is economically unsound and insensible. Now that we are recognizing these simple but long obscured facts we should also be fair to the men who have done the work in carrying out that nation's unwise will. And as soon as this or any other country pays each of its soldiers what his time and risk are worth it will find that was far more expensive than has hitherto been shown; too costly for the meager gains that show in the balance sheet of history."

Referring to action in Congress "in spite of Secretary Mellon's warning," the CHATTANOOGA NEWS doubts that "the loans to veterans will disturb the situation," and is convinced that "the compromise is a happy solution." The KALAMAZOO GAZETTE believes that "while political considerations invariably play their part in the treatment of veterans' aid proposals, it seems quite possible that in this case the Representatives have weighed Mr. Mellon's arguments carefully and found them wanting." That paper adds: "If the veterans were to make no more use of the new loan value than they have made of the present privilege, the outstanding loans would be increased by only about $300,000,000. And that sum is but slightly more than the Treasury is already obligated to make."

"It is evident," thinks the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, "that half the number of veterans in the country prefer to hold their certificates as retirement policies, and of the remainder a large number have negotiated only temporary loans, and those somewhat below the maximum allowed. It is reasonable to suppose that an increase in the loan value will not greatly increase the total number of borrowers or the amount of loans to only temporary borrowers." The CHICAGO DAILY TIMES-DISPATCH quotes fiscal experts as saying that "this will mean an increase in taxes," but adds: "Congress was in humor to grant in full the value of the certificates; half of that amount in loans, they thought, was getting the government off easy. In any event the bill seems good in law," concludes The Times-Dispatch.

"We believe," says the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, "Mr. Hoover unduly exaggerated the effect that this bill will have on the country. He speaks of what the Government would have to raise for the veterans as a 'liability.' This liability was assumed when the adjusted compensation act was passed in 1924. The money then allocated to ex-soldiers is a Government obligation. The present bill creates no new obligation. It does not propose giving away anything that has not been given away before. All it does is to make it possible for the ex-soldiers to borrow more money on reasonable terms; in other words, it does for them what the Government has already done for the farmers."

The measure has been supported, "against the warning of the President," according to the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, "in the belief that the American Legion and the force of public opinion will restrain an unnecessary demand upon the Federal Treasury and that the service men will once more evidence their patriotism by restraining a ruinous raid on Government finances. The measure can be supported, in the face of the figures presented by the President, only in the belief that it will be used for need relief and not abused in a general rush to 'cash in.'"

Possibility that business will be benefited by the bonus distribution is suggested by the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER and the SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER. The MERIDIAN STAR "is glad to see the veterans get a 'break' and offers the comment: 'Everybody seemingly has reaped some benefit from the great world madness save the boys who bared their breasts to sacrifice and death.' The ALLEN-TOWN MORNING CALL holds that the measure is 'better than existing relief and is expected to take care of the most needy cases.' The LANCING NEWS declares that 'hosts of the men to whom the obligation is due are in sore need of money with which to support themselves and their families.'

Holding that the bill "is a poor thing at best," the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR says as to its provisions: "If the measure had been confined to the needy, and had provided for the payment of fifty per cent of the face value of the bonus certificates held by them, instead of a loan, it would have been a much fairer proposition for the veterans and for the country. As it is, the needy veterans who borrow fifty per cent of the face value of their bonus certificates and are compelled to pay four and one-half per cent compounded annually, on their loans, will in all probability lose the other fifty per cent of their certificates. They will be unable to repay the loans."

Quoting the President's objections to aid for "those who can by their own efforts support themselves," and to making available "the largest part of the huge sum for those who are not in distress," the NORFOLK VIRGINIAN-PILOT concludes that "as statements of principle and fact, those objections are unanswerable." The HARTFORD TIMES holds that the great vote for the measure "does not reflect the public judgment" and that "it cannot be beneficial in any quarter." The RICHMOND NEWS LEADER calls it "economic folly," the BIRMINGHAM NEWS, "opening the Treasury to demands that it could not bear without extremely serious consequences to the country." The News speaks of the measure—

ARE YOU QUITTING?

There are times when you feel like giving up.

The struggle of years against odds has made most of your life one of hard work and disappointment.

So little advance financially has taken the pep out of you.

Somehow living expenses have kept up with salary or wage increase.

You don't blame yourself—but who is to blame if you are not?

If you had checked your requirements each year, your bank account might have increased.

But it is easy to shift the blame, then weigh your own weakness.

True you have pinched in some ways and then expended your surplus.

That has been your greatest trouble, that you could not see a sizable sum in the bank without planning to use it.

What does it matter if you save only to spend in some other way.

You are not consistent in your efforts.

Your will is not strong enough to keep an increasing sum over and above expenses.

When you develop your backbone you will stand by your resolutions.

Now you contemplate being a "quitter"—and want to give up.

Are you going to allow this thought to master you?

Company To Use

Oppose Grant Of Advertising Rights

By a three to two vote today city council granted permission to a local amusement company to use the waste boxes along local highways for advertising purposes. The company will pay $1 for seven boxes for a period of six months. Mayor Gillespie and Councilman Burns opposed the grant.

Mayor Gillespie said he would not be in favor of the grant unless other persons or firms had a chance to bid for the right to use the boxes as an advertising medium.

Councilman Burns said he was opposed to the grant because he believes it is contrary to state law and that the city has worked hard to eliminate signs from the streets and also because other persons had no chance to bid.

Councilman Reeves brought up the offer from the company and his motion was seconded by Genkinger. The motion carried, with Reeves, Genkinger and Treser voting favorably and Mayor Gillespie and Burns negatively.

During the discussion Reeves pointed out that a billboard company uses city owned property as a place for their signs and pay $50 a year to the city.

Buckley SlayingDetroit Woman Admits Be-

SLAYING SUSPECT(International News Service)
DETROIT, Feb. 27.—New information of the slaying of Gerald Buckley, crime-crushing radio announcer, whose violent death the state is attempting to avenge by the trial of three alleged gangsters for the murder, was revealed today after a secret session of the special 22-man grand jury which is probing crime conditions here.

Mrs. Lucille Love the daughter of a policeman and a former guest at the Lasalle Hotel where the murder occurred admitted to police, they said, that she was the driver of the automobile which stalled in front of the hotel and blocked traffic, preventing police chase of the killers immediately after the crime. The stalling of the car was accidental she claimed.

Important also was the woman's admission that she had lunched with Angelo Livecchi, one of the three men on trial for the slaying, a short time after the murder of the fatal night of July 23. According to police it places Livecchi near the scene of the crime at the time three gunmen invaded the hotel lobby and pumped 13 bullets into the body of the popular radio idol.

Mrs. Love and her husband Harry are being held incommunicado by police.

it in Owen D. Young's proposed restriction to those in need.

"Provision should be made for larger loans to veterans in distress; but there is no need to make additional loans available to all who might care to have them regardless of necessity," says the KANSAS CITY STAR, while the NEW YORK TIMES remarks: "The old song used to be, 'Uncle Sam is rich enough to give us all a farm.' Certainly he must be rich enough today to give us all a pension." But The Times adds: "We are apparently in for a rude awakening from these golden dreams, but till now congress seems to believe that it still has the Midas touch."

That political considerations and vote getting or fear of votes governed the action by congress is the contention of the AKRON BEACON JOURNAL, the NEW YORK WORLD and the CHATTANOOGA TIMES. The JERSEY CITY JOURNAL avers that Messrs. Hoover and Mellon are fighting "a powerful combination of politicians who are afraid to vote against anything the organized veterans stand for." The HARTFORD COURANT calls the measure "wily political" and the NEW YORK EVENING POST suggests: "Against this direct impact of minority strength the senate used to have a barrier through the election of senators by the state legislatures, but the railroad vote for this disastrous pension raid shows that senators can scuttle as rapidly as representatives."

"Congress need not expect the country to believe even a majority of the house or senate thinks this is sound or helpful legislation," asserts the NEWARK EVENING NEWS, with the conclusion: "Let it take its orderly course, so that those who are determined to surrender to the veterans may have no excuse when the country voices its feeling." The MORGANTOWN DOMINION-NEWS feels that "the worst part of it is that there is no way of telling which of the representatives voted 'yes' sincerely." The measure is condemned by the ST. PAUL PIONEER PRESS, the

SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) UNION, the PROVIDENCE BULLETIN and the SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE.

"Most of it will be spent within a year or two," maintains the CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST, "and then the veterans will be back for more in one form or another. All the safeguards against a tremendous pension burden which were erected at the beginning of the World war have gone for naught. The country will be paying pensions for the World war to the end of the century in which it was fought—if another and another war leave anything with which to pay them."

The DAYTON DAILY NEWS agrees that "doubtless history will repeat itself time after time as new demands arise." As to the economic effects, it is recognized by the DAYTON DEMOCRAT, the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER, the INDIANAPOLIS STAR and ROCK ISLAND ARGUS that there are uncertainties and differences of opinion as to the working out of the financial features.

"What the economic reactions will be," states the FORT WORTH RECORD-TELEGRAM, "will come to the public sooner or later. But the political reactions are already arrived. If the measure accomplishes nothing else, it demonstrates the total disorganization of the two political parties. * * * Whatever the veterans' loan bill does to the economics of the country, the fact of its having been the rock upon which party politics split for reassembly on the two sides of the prohibition question next year makes it the beginning of a new epoch. There are no political parties in existence in the United States today."

Hope that, in the distribution of the bonus, claims will be limited to those who are in need of the money, notwithstanding the obligation of the country to those who fought in the war, is voiced by the SAN BERNARDINO SUN and the CLEVELAND NEWS. The MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL advises that "those in the non-borrowing group continue to see the advantage of retaining their certificates as insurance."

HEARING IS HELD ON ELIMINATION OF R. R. CROSSINGS

saying that they are about five feet higher than the roadway. He said that three accidents have occurred at the crossing within the past year. In one, two men were killed; in the other a truck was demolished. He considered the crossing dangerous, particularly when there is fog.

William Gilmore, a merchant of Hillsville also told about the three accidents during the past year. He said that he had crossed the tracks on the morning when the two men named Cameron and Mayberry had been killed. It was very foggy and before he crossed, he stopped to make sure that there were no trains coming. He said that when the weather is fair the tracks can be seen for a considerable distance each way but when it is foggy nothing can be seen.

W. W. Duff of this city testified that he crosses the tracks frequently and that it is often dangerous on account of the fog. He said that the road is used to a considerable extent by trucks hauling limestone from the quarries in the vicinity of Hillsville. He also gave testimony as to the accidents mentioned by the other witnesses.

Travel Figures

John Shoaff of Edenburg told about taking a census of the traffic for three days. He was on duty from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. On February 16th, 1931, he counted 140 automobiles, 33 trucks and 44 pedestrians using the crossing. On February 17th, there were 138 automobiles, 23 trucks and 38 pedestrians. On February 18th there were 182 automobiles, 10 trucks and 50 pedestrians.

On the same dates William Toy kept the count at night from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. Mr. Toy testified that on the first night there were 78 automobiles, 1 truck and 40 pedestrians; on second night, 43 automobiles, no trucks and 12 pedestrians and on the third night, 63 automobiles, no trucks and 25 pedestrians. Milo Paden testified that he had obtained figures from the Union Limestone Company showing the number of limestone trucks passing over the crossing daily. The average was a trifle over 14. He said that there were four other limestone companies in the district, but he did not have figures showing the number of trucks used.

Bernard N. Hannon was called to show that the highway route, 317, designated in the petition, is known as the traffic route. The road is also designated as 444, which is the state route name.

Number of Trains

L. J. Bieglar, assistant civil engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, central division, exhibited a map showing the crossing and grades. The tracks are a little over five feet above the roadway. Asked regarding the number of trains which run over the crossing daily Mr. Bieglar produced data for February 7th, 8th and 9th, which would be a fair average. On the 7th there were 15 passenger trains and 17 freights. On the 8th 16 passenger trains and 21 freights and on the 9th 14 passenger trains and 13 freights.

Mr. Bieglar did not consider the crossing dangerous except during fogs. He said that the tracks could be seen for a thousand feet or more on each side of the crossing. He believed that if signal flash lights were installed it would eliminate the danger in fog. He did not have any figures showing the probable cost of eliminating the crossing or of installing the lights.

John Gibson testified that he came to the Edenburg district in 1864 or 5. The railroad was there at that time. He understood that it had been built about two years before his arrival. The public road has not been changed. He considered the crossing dangerous when it is foggy. Photographs of the crossing were offered. This closed the testimony.

North Crossing

The crossing north of Edenburg was then taken up. Norman McClelland, was the first witness called. He said that approaching through the covered bridge from the south the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie tracks are about 50 or 75 feet from the end of the bridge. About 15 feet further on are the Ohio tracks and about 20 feet north, the street car tracks.

The ground raises from the bridge side toward the north, and there is also a curve in the road. He knew of 14 accidents in which 10 lives have been lost on this crossing. He went into detail regarding the different accidents. Some of them occurred when autos were hit by trains, others when pedestrians were struck. The latest was when a car was thrown out of the rumble seat of an automobile in descending the declivity between the tracks.

He considered the crossing a dangerous one for several reasons: first on account of the curve, and second by reason of the fact that the tracks were not on a level. Approaching from the north there is a cut that hides the view to the west. Formerly there were no lights to warn travellers, but during recent years lights have been installed.

Says Its Dangerous

Justice of the Peace James Eakin of Hillsville, testified that he has been travelling over the crossing for the past forty years. He said that it was particularly dangerous during foggy weather also when it was icy. He described the tracks and the approaches. A number of other witnesses were called. Most of them knew of accident which had occurred at the crossing. They also believed it to be dangerous particularly when it is foggy.

Testimony of the witnesses was taken down by a stenographer. It will be written out on a typewriter and will be presented before the full membership of the Public Service Commission. It was indicated that there will be another hearing before a decision can be expected.

What was the Whiskey Insurrection?

Whiskey Insurrection is the term popularly applied to the organized opposition among the farmers and distillers of the four western counties of Pennsylvania in 1794 to the enforcement of the federal law, March, 1791, imposing an excise tax on whiskey. In May, 1792, President Washington issued a proclamation commanding the insurgents to disperse, and warning others against abetting them. The real significance of the disturbances, which never rose to the dignity of an insurrection, was that it was the first instance in which the strength of the new federal government to maintain domestic tranquility and enforce laws was put to the test. The promptness with which the resistance was put down won respect for the government and established valuable precedents with regard to its power and duty on similar occasions in the future.

Fined As Bootlegger, Then Became Cop

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 27.—In the morning, Ben Bernacchi, 22, completed his final work at the police training school and became a full fledged officer of the law.

On the afternoon of the same day, Bernacchi, wearing his new police uniform and shiny new star, appeared in the Federal court and paid a $200 fine for bootlegging.

Civil service records showed that Bernacchi applied for a position on the police force in October, 1927.

While awaiting his police appointment, Bernacchi worked for a time as a bartender in a saloon. Last spring, while he was so engaged, the place was raided and the young police aspirant was arrested. Later he was indicted. It was while he was waiting for his trial to be reached in a crowded docket that he began his police training.

When Bernacchi's case was called, one morning recently, he failed to appear, but in the afternoon came to court in uniform to explain his absence by saying he had been attending graduating exercises at the police school. He pleaded guilty and was fined.

"Do you think you'll make Chicago a good police officer?" asked Judge Walter Lindley from the bench.

"Yes, I think I will," was the reply.

Peter's Adventures

AN OLD-FASHIONED CUSTOM

What in the world was Firefly Beetle talking about? Peter was puzzled.

"Blister Beetle asked me if I was a Human and I told the truth!" declared Peter, speaking to his own defense.

"Well, that was one of the times when the truth should not have been spoken!" said Firefly. "However, there's no use crying over spilled milk, and since no great harm was done, let's forget it."

"But why was Blister Beetle afraid of me?" Peter's curiosity would not allow him to keep silence.

"Didn't you hear Blister say that he was of more value dead than alive?" demanded Firefly. "Long ago some Human got it into his head that a dead Blister Beetle would cure all sorts of troubles, and so it followed that when anything was the matter with them, the Humans went out into their gardens and killed Blister Beetles. Ever since then every sensible Blister Beetle mother-has taught her children to run away from Two-Legs."

"But Humans don't kill Blister Beetles any longer!" cried Peter. "When they are ill they call for the doctor."

"Very likely it is an old-fashioned custom," agreed Firefly, "but a habit is a habit, and hard to break. Worse than that, the poor Blister Beetle thinks so much about what might happen to him if he falls into the clutches of a Two-Legs that he grows sad and scared. That is why all Blister Beetles are nervous and shake at every sound. No wonder. It can't be very pleasant to look forward toward being crumbled into powder."

"Good gracious, is that the fate that befalls the poor things?" asked the boy, but his question was never answered. He happened to glance up and noticed that the Beetles, one and all, were glaring at him in anything but friendly fashion. Peter stepped back a pace.

Changes His Name Over-Night But Is Sentenced Anyhow

(International News Service)

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 27.—"John Berger," John Berger, called the clerk in aidmanic court here. There was one prisoner in the dock. He made no response. "What's your name?" asked the court of the lone prisoner. "Oh," came the reply. "Hm, must be some mistake," said Alderman Gotthardt. "This can't be the man."

Police were puzzled. "Oh," was the only prisoner they had left in stock.

Entered Captain Miller. "It's all right," said he. "This is the man you want. He was arrested last night, charged, with being drunk, gave his name as Ohl, then Berger."

"Oh," said the court. "Three days."

Patrolman Stops Miniature War

(International News Service)

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 27.—Grateful parents here cannot recall, offhand, just what award goes to one who stops a war.

But, had they their say, the award, whatever it is, would go to Patrolman Ivan Steffy.

Putt-putting along on his motorcycle near the Marietta pike, Steffy heard the sound of battle. Guns popped, a bugler bugled—and Steffy realized he was in No Man's Land.

Descending from his cycle, Steffy collared nine youths, part of one "army." The "enemy" beat a strategic withdrawal in possession of their arms, if not with colors flying.

Police here are holding nine air rifles while nine small boys muster up courage enough to claim their property and promise to participate in no more "wars" in which the arms figure.

ANOTHER MANEST THIEF
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 27.—Jos. Geiser, ill in bed, held on tightly to $125 he had placed in the pocket of his nightgown.

The patient dozed off for a few minutes.

When Geiser awoke he discovered that the newest claimant to the title of "meanest thief" had pried open the bedroom window and made off with the money.

Tree Grows Around Old Pipe In Trunk

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 27.—When A. R. Sullivan picked up a piece of wood to throw in his stove, he thought for a moment that he had discovered a mysterious pipe-tree, or possibly some Italian briar that nature had fashioned into the actual shape of a pipe.

Close examination disclosed, however, that an old pipe had been sealed in the heart of a tree, and that 80 rings had grown around it.

William Bonney, curator of the state historical society, declared that the pipe had probably been placed in a hole in a fir tree nearly 100 years ago by some trapper or hunter.

Local B. & O. Men Have No Desire To Visit In Russia

Decline Invitation To Be Members Of Commission To Assist Soviets

When a commission from this country, composed of railroad men leaves for Russia to study conditions in the Soviet Republic and proffer advice on how to raise the efficiency of the Russian railway lines, it will not include any members of the local division of the B. & O. Terminal Trainmaster J. L. Thomas stated this morning.

An entire divisional staff is being made up among B. & O. men to visit the Soviet Republic at the invitation of the Russian government, which will be headed by Supt. Gill of the Eastern lines.

The local railroaders feel that Russia is a long ways off, and that many of the things said about the country and their methods of living may be only too true. Hence they decided it would be better to remain in the good old U. S. A.

CROSSING THE EQUATOR

New Castle News,
Dear Sirs:

Some time ago I was interested in an item in The News, "The Prince of Wales and Brother Good Sports in Equator Festivities."

In February, 1905, I sailed on the S.S. Prince S. S. from New York to Buenos Aires, Argentine republic, to drill deep water wells for the Buenos Aires & Pacific R. R. Co. Fourteen days from New York we crossed the Equatorial line. This boat carried a full replica of Father Neptune and his officers.

Benign my first trip, I was arrested, tried and sentenced to be initiated into "The Mysteries of the Deep." My face was lathered all over and the barber then proceeded to shave me with a three-foot wooden razor. Dr. Saw Bones then gave me some pills made of soap. Somehow my chair was knocked from under me and I fell into a large tank of water.

Expecting several fire hose to be turned on me and being able to dive under water longer than any of the boys in the old Greece City Mill dam, Butler county, I did not come up for some time, made a dash and was out before the scared firemen could get their hose working.

At breakfast the next morning they told me they were just going in after me when I came out, so I had a kick out of it too. The boat did not stop for 27 days and although I love the water, I shall never forget how good the rows of street lights looked as we arrived in the harbor of Montevideo, Uruguay, at night. The next day I went, by a river boat to Buenos Aires, a city the size of Philadelphia, Pa., called the "Paris City of America."

After being there one year the R. Co. agreed to pay my wife's fare to Argentina. She stopped at Pernambuco and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and was ashore one day at each place. After being in Buenos Aires for some time Mrs. Blair thought there were other beautiful places beside the U. S. A.

After being in Argentina for another year during which we had many friends, we left for home by way of London, England, and was ashore one day at Tenerife in the Canary Islands. Was in a bull ring here but there was no fight on that day. We were in England nine days which we enjoyed immensely.

Sailed for New York on the Adriatic, the largest boat afloat, in 1907. In 1911 I went to Roumania for one year and Russia for two years. I think yet Russia will become one of the great countries of the world but will not under Bolshevik rule.

MATTER AND SPACE

Editor, News:

Matter and space have always been prolific subjects for investigation, speculation and discussion, but never more so than at present. Many minds are now much concerned about which begat the other and their relative importance. Einstein, himself, if correctly reported, refused to definitely state which is the hen and which the egg in this ancient conundrum, but at another time seems to give priority to space when he declares that space is not getting its revenge, is pursuing and eating up matter. We have seen such an occurrence in animal life, where a mother under certain conditions will devour her offspring but this only proves that the offspring did not have a very good mother and if all mothers did similarly, there would soon be extermination of the species so mother space must not give too much leeway to that rapacious appetite or both she and her offspring, matter, will become extinct.

Without space there would be no place to put matter, and without matter there could be no use for space and so it would seem that the relationship of this pair, space and matter, is not that of parent and child or visa versa but a mere Siam-ese twins case in which one cannot exist without the other and neither is parent of the other.

Now the materialist is and forever must be under the necessity of finding his first cause in some form or relationship of matter else he would not be a materialist when he finally wearies in his hopeless search he may discover from his own relation to the world of matter that his sole knowledge of it or contact with it is through mind and that therefore mind is the essential factor which he has left out in all his materialistic considerations.

Neither matter, space or the investigation of them has any possible or conceivable existence except in and through mind and so we will have to add a concluding statement to our former deduction which will now read: "Without space there would be no place to put matter, without matter there would be no use for space, but without mind neither space or matter could be."

City.

Dear Mr. Rentz:

It surely is a pleasure to me to carry out the wishes of our local council at this time. During its last meeting the splendid publicity given our Movement by your paper was mentioned by several members: this being done after our publicity chairman has made his report for the past year.

At this meeting a motion that "The New Castle News be extended a vote of appreciation for the splendid publicity it has given our Movement during the past year" was unanimously carried. I am happy to convey it herewith.

The press of today exerts an influence on our daily life which is not realized by many. The printed word has always been a mighty power, and with the modern machinery for the printing of the sheet itself, which flash news to its headquarters from all parts of the globe, and with the quick distribution facilities extant today, it indeed ranks among the important industries of the present age.

With best wishes for the continued success of New Castle's paper and its staff, I am,
Yours for better boyhood,

Potters Conclude Wage Sessions In Mysterious Manner

Secret Adjournment Of Conference Without Revealing Events

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—With a sudden, unexpected and secret adjournment of their sessions, representatives of the United States Pottery Association and the National Brotherhood of operative potters were on their way home today without revealing whether a settlement of their wage scale had been effected.

No statements indicative that the 1930 wage scale, now in effect pending the agreement of representatives to draw up a new one, had been superseded were given out. Charles L. Sebring, of Sebring, O., president of the manufacturers' association, left the city, as well as James Duffy, of East Liverpool, president of the union, without making known the results, if any, of the conferences which had continued for six days.

Last December, sessions held here were adjourned without an agreement between the workers and employers being effected. The present conference constituted an adjournment from the former meeting.

Procession That Never Moves

Odd Memorial Stands Silently in Family Cemetery—Except On Stormy Nights When Ghostly Figures Talk, So Old Story Goes

THE PROCESSION THAT NEVER MOVES IN THE WORLD'S STRANGEST GRAVEYARD

By Central Press

MAYFIELD, Ky., Feb. 27.—A procession that never moves, one of the strangest in the world, appears more ghostly than ever as the icy winds of winter whistle through the confines of Maplewood cemetery here.

The extraordinary whim of an eccentric millionaire, H. G. Woolridge, has given Kentucky its spectacular graveyard, the goal of motoring tourists.

Upon one large plot, nearly an acre in extent, has been assembled life-sized statues of Woolridge, members of his family, many relatives, and even his favorite horse and dogs. A deer stands at the head of this strange group, which appears to be ready to march when the horn of Gabriel is blown on the resurrection morn.

The Woolridge family had long ranked with the leading blue bloods of the state. Woolridge was proud of his lineage and believed that an enduring memorial should be installed that would be different from that of the prosaic type appearing in most cemeteries. He conceived the idea of an open air hall of fame, where for all time, the appearance of himself and his family and his contemporaries, as well as the animals that he loved, would be preserved in enduring marble. A lover of horses, and a sportsman who was fond of riding with the hounds in the quest of game, he did not overlook animals in carrying out his plan, and many replicas of these also appear.

Stone Convenient
This city is the center of a quarry district that there was to be found an abundance of stone from which sculptors could fashion the figures desired by their patron. His parents and brothers and sisters, as well as uncles and aunts who had preceded him across the river of death, all are included in the strange group. Photographs from dust covered albums were utilized to guide the chisels as they chipped away the bits of stone to reveal the hidden figure, to be memorialized. Written descriptions from children and others who knew those who had passed on were also secured and, while some of these might not have been wholly accurate the job satisfied Woolridge and no complaints were heard from others who might have been interested.

One by one the memorials were hoisted into position, all facing in the same direction. That in some instances the bodies of these relatives were buried elsewhere did not give Woolridge any concern.

Two Statues of Himself
Woolridge decided upon two statues of himself, one standing with hand extended as if pointing with pride to his ancestry. The other depicts him mounted upon his favorite upon which he had often followed the hounds in the quest of game. In the carving of these two, Woolridge nettled the sculptor by his insistence upon exactitude. He personally supervised the chiseling.

The horse, which was reproduced with the figure of the owner in the saddle, bore the odd name of "Pop". The animal died a number of years prior to the decision to create this group of family sculpture, but Woolridge carried in his mind the exact appearance of the horse when alive. The size, length of mane and tail, the type of bridle and saddle, and other details, were faithfully reproduced as Woolridge furnished the description and the result gave complete satisfaction to the old gentleman.

The young people of the Emmanuel Baptist church conducted the service of the church last Sunday evening. The program was in the hands of Miss Ellen Jones who did her work splendidly. Brinley Hughes of Cunningham avenue opened the service with the scripture reading and prayer followed by solos by Miss Williams and Miss Elveria Bludorn.

MacDonald Will Not Resign In Face Of Defeat

Special Cabinet Meeting Called Monday To Decide Course Of Action

DISPUTE BILL IS CAUSE OF DEFEAT

Humiliating Setback For MacDonald Government As Amendment Carries

(International News Service) LONDON, Feb. 27.—Despite its humiliating defeat in committee on the trades dispute bill, the chief measure of its legislative program, the government of Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald gave no indication today of any intention to resign.

The government's course of action will be decided definitely on Monday, when a special cabinet meeting will be held at 10 Downing street. The defeat came yesterday, when a standing committee of the house of commons carried a liberal amendment to the bill, making strikes and lock-outs against public services illegal. The amendment would virtually invalidate the measure, and the government appeared confronted by only two alternatives—resignation or complete surrender of the bill.

Downing street holds, however, that the government has merely been defeated in committee and not in parliament, and that opportunities for compromise still remain.

Parliamentary observers believe that extremists will forbid the cabinet from putting up with loss of the bill's essential factors, forcing the government's resignation and insisting upon immediate new elections.

Clarence G. Dixon Named Postmaster

Well Known Druggist Will Fill Unexpired Term Of Clifford G. Chase

Local friends of Clarence G. Dixon, Butler druggist and business man, will be pleased to note that he has been named postmaster of Butler, to succeed Clifford G. Chase, who died on February 21.

Mr. Dixon is a native of Penn township, Butler county, and graduated from the department of pharmacy in the University of Pittsburgh in 1902. He has been active in the affairs of the Republican party for many years, having been delegate to two presidential conventions and had taken a personal interest in all civic affairs.

Recommendation for the appointment was made by Representative J. Howard Swick of Beaver Falls.

Choose Girl Page For Texas Senate

(International News Service) AUSTIN, Feb. 27.—Two things actuated the Texas senate in selecting its first girl page shortly after the 42nd legislature convened this month.

The pretty little blonde 13-year-old lass is named Thelma Bills. Nothing could be more appropriate, the senators figured, than to have a girl with such a name to carry the bills expeditiously from members' desks to the secretary.

Then the people of Texas have seen fit to elect one woman senator, Miss Margie Neal of Canage, so why should the senate organization of pages continue to be a purely masculine affair?

Thelma is the daughter of Mrs. C. L. Bills of Austin.

The house selected its first girl page at a special session last year. She is Margie Rollins, 12-year-old curly-headed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Rollins of Austin.

Depression Sends People To Libraries

(International News Service) SALEM, Ore., Feb. 27.—Periods of depression make for increased popularity of public libraries.

According to state librarian Miss Harriet C. Long, Oregon's readers increased their demands by 64,540 volumes during the past biennium. A total of 341,395 books were loaned.

"When individuals and families are less able to purchase the books and magazines they need, they naturally turn to the free libraries," Miss Long declared.

Under Miss Long's direction isolated sections of the state and small towns unable to maintain libraries are supplied through the mails and by traveling libraries.

Penn. Mother Knew Best

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The experience of Mrs. M. Smith, 2042 S. Salford St., Philadelphia, is a typical one. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with both my girls ever since they were just tiny babies. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy, well in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

Physicians endorse the use of pure vegetable California Fig Syrup when bad breath, coated tongue, dizziness, feverishness, listlessness, etc., show a child's bowels are in need of help. Weak stomach and bowels are toned by its gentle aid; appetite increased; digestion and assimilation are so assisted that weak, undernourished children quickly improve in weight, strength and energy.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. All drugstores have it.

Recommends Jungle To Escape Traffic

Life Safer There Than In City Streets, Lecturer States

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 27.—If you are tired about crossing a busy downtown street; if you sometimes pine for a less hazardous life...

The African jungle is the answer. Life in parts of the jungle is safer than that in Pittsburgh's traffic-crammed streets, in the opinion of Dr. S. A. Barrett, director of the Milwaukee public museum.

Lecturing here after an 11-month expedition into the African wilds, Dr. Barrett said:

"The African veldt can best be compared to a huge zoological garden with the animals roaming all over. The major part is uninhabited wilderness, although a few native cities are scattered in the interior."

"The wild animals are not half so wild as we are often led to believe. Bad water and insects are the chief dangers to be guarded against."

"The carnivorous species—lions and leopards—hardly ever attack a man unless they are injured first. In most cases they take to flight on seeing a human being."

City Councilmen Cut Golf Cost

Approve Recommendations Cutting Cost Of Play Here

Council met in formal meeting at city hall today and adopted recommendations offered by Daniel Woolcock, Louis Round and Howard Richards, members of the municipal golf committee. As a result the cost of 1931 golf will be cut.

The committee delivered a report on 1930 golf activities and then recommended a new scale of prices as follows:

Fifty cents for nine holes, $0.75 for 18 holes, $1.00 for all day, $15.00 for an individual season ticket and $2.50 a season for locker rental.

Former prices were: 50 cents for 9 holes, $1.00 for 18 holes, $20.00 for a season ticket and $3.00 for locker rental for the season.

The committee requested that the sum of $3,000 be provided for 1931 for the use of the course which will be required until revenue starts coming in. Part of the $3,000 will be used to pay for a truck ordered bought in connection with work at the course.

American Play Too Strenuous Say Scientists

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—America's chant of being about to have a nervous breakdown from overwork is without foundation, according to Dr. Ernest A. Spiegel, noted Viennese scientist, and his wife, Madam Mona Adolf-Spiegel, internationally known authority on colloidal chemistry, who have joined the medical staff of Temple University, Philadelphia. Americans do not work but play too hard, Dr. Spiegel believes.

"All this talk about Americans working under greater pressure and at a higher tension than Europeans seems to me to be unfounded," said Dr. Spiegel. "I do not find your people either more or less subject to definite nervousness than ours. All the world is working under too much pressure, but that is a defect of the age, not of any particular country."

Nodding agreement with her husband, Mrs. Spiegel added:
"When you take a holiday you drive hundreds of miles or do something equally violent or strenuous. It never seems to occur to you to just sit. Why don't you just sit sometimes? It would be good for you."

Both agreed they had larger opportunities for research in this country, not because there are more disorderly minds and bodies, but because there were more institutions to study those who are afflicted.

Dr. Ernest Spiegel is one of the most distinguished of European scientists. He is a specialist on the physiological aspects of diseases of the brain and nervous system, following long years of study in the famous clinic of Austria. He was head of the neuro-pathological research clinic at the Polytechnic Hospital in Vienna at the university there.

Do Not Practice What They Preach

(International News Service)
LONDON, Feb. 27.—Landmen who frequently omit the prefix "H. M. S." or "the" before the name of British warships, are in the words of an official at the British Admiralty, "merely showing their woeful ignorance."

It has now been discovered that the Admiralty is guilty of the offense every day of the week.

In the announcements issued daily by the Naval Department, and published in all English newspapers, no prefixes are used before the names of any warships.

When this was pointed out to an official at the Admiralty, he declared:

"I think that it must have been an oversight."

Many Cases For March Court

With approximately 125 cases ready for presentation to the grand jury on Monday, March 2, District Attorney John S. Powers is prepared for the March term of court. While it is expected that many of the cases will enter pleas of guilty, or nolle contendere, there will still remain a sizeable list of cases to try before the juries.

LOOKING BACK IN NEW CASTLE

Roller skating first became a pronounced craze in this city some fifty years ago. Hundreds of the young people of that day found it a real amusement diversion and indeed it was quite the fashion.

The first roller skating rink of any size or degree of importance was the old Allen Rink, corner of Beaver and Washington streets. There are still those in the city who will remember this place and its roller skating activities.

Then Eugene Richardson had a roller skating place in the city building. About 1885 a company was organized and constructed the building, on the public square at the northwest corner of Washington and Jefferson streets.

First used as a modern roller skating place of that city, it later became known as the Park theatre, one of the important places of amusement in theatrical lines.

There are those who will remember the destruction of this famous amusement center some four or five years after its construction. It was destroyed by a fire early one Sunday morning and furnished the most spectacular blaze in the history of the city up until that time. During its existence, it and the Allen Opera House on South Mercer street, now the Capitol Theatre, had been the amusement centers of the city.

Tomorrow: When Lawrence County was formed, its first court and when the court house was constructed.

Twenty-Six Ton Steam Shovel Is Reported Stolen

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 27.—There was the lad who lost a bass drum, and he went down in history. And now comes the fellow who stole a 26-ton steam shovel. The shovel was taken away from the Ontario operation of the Pennsylvania Anthracite company, loaded on a trailer and hauled. Just who took the shovel, police don't know, but they arrested twelve men, said to be employees of a rival coal company, to make sure they had the culprit. According to police, controversy between the corporations over the ownership of the shovel inflamed employees, who took matters in their own hands by "lifting" it. The shovel now waits settlement of ownership in a warehouse here.

Wins Oratory Prize Without Speaking

(International News Service)
MALDEN, Mass., Feb. 27.—Rev. W. Quay Roselle, D.D., of the First Baptist Church, Malden, won second prize in an oratory contest at the Malden Rotary Club. And now, Rev. Roselle believes that he is the first orator ever to win a prize in an oratory contest without uttering a sound. The contest was staged as a stunt. Each member of the Rotary Club selected his own subject and all spoke simultaneously for five minutes. When they got through, Charles E. Kenniston, Jr., was adjudged winner of first prize and Rev. Roselle who admitted he never spoke a word, but merely formed syllables with his mouth, took second prize.

Fire Company Is 151 Years Old

(International News Service)
LEBAI, J.N., Pa., Feb. 27.—One hundred and fifty-one years of continuous service was celebrated recently by the Union Fire Company. At a banquet held to mark the anniversary, Mayor W. L. Brunner, former Rep. Ralph J. Behney, and Rev. W. E. Swartz, pastor of the Presbyterian church, presided. Members of the American Legion addressed members of the company.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Centra! Press

When Alexander Legge leaves the federal farm board, early in March, the affairs of the famous body will enter on a new phase.

Mr. Legge, as everybody will recall, was made the original chairman when the board was organized in the early summer of 1929. While the other members have been by no means inactive, Messrs. Stone, McKelvie and Williams often in the limelight, nevertheless it is Alexander Legge who has been the head man. With his resignation, the board will seem like an empty shell.

Of course that is not really the case. The present expectation is that Mr. James C. Stone, who has been vice chairman, will succeed Mr. Legge. Mr. Stone is capable and experienced, and there is no reason why the operations of the farm board should not go along successfully under his leadership.

But we shall miss Alexander Legge's picturesque personality and outspoken language. In a Washington full of tongue-tied officeholders and timid statesmen, his plain speaking has been most refreshing. In the words of a friend of mine, he "was not afraid to tell anybody where they got off."

More changes in the farm board are just ahead. Mr. S. R. McKelvie and Mr. C. C. Teague, who represent respectively the grain and fruit producers on the board, will retire soon. And there may be other resignations.

I do not blame anybody for getting off the farm board, for it is a hard, perplexing and, for the most part, a thankless job. Congress is critical of the board's work, many trade organizations do what they can to embarrass it, and among farmers, themselves, there are large classes who either feel that the farm board is useless, or actually blame it for the severe depression in prices of many farm products.

That is not all. The stabilization corporations in wheat and cotton, financed with farm board money, are holding huge quantities of these two commodities. The 1931 crops are now beginning to hang over the markets like a threatening cloud. The stabilization corporations will certainly not be able to unload this year, and it is even more certain that they will refuse to increase their holdings.

That will add to the troubles of the farm board, and complaints that it is a "do-nothing" body will increase.

As I said at the beginning, we are starting a new chapter. Minus its seasoned chairman, facing increased difficulties, and with three or more inexperienced new members, the farm board is in for a lively time in the next ten months of 1931.

Thousands of well-meaning people are taking the chance of being crippled for life with rheumatism. When a rheumatic attack occurs they seek to deaden the pain with handy relievers—a method that usually ends with disastrous results. Sufferers know that painful, swollen, inflamed joints and muscles are caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood. When you drive this troublesome uric acid from the blood you are getting rid of the cause of rheumatism—relievers won't do this. While you are taking the nerve deadening relievers the uric acid continues to

ATTACKS DOLE

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 27.—Doles for unemployed persons were recently denounced here as active aggravators which only make the situation worse by Dr. William Traft Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation of Economic Research, at Newton, Mass. "Jobs create self respect, and the habit of work. Doles do not create jobs they create loafers," he said.

Hoover Causes Settlement Of Naval Troubles

Intercession Of President Today Saves Tie-Up Of Naval Bill

DIFFERENCES ARE BELIEVED SETTLED

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The intercession of President Hoover today brought peaceful solution of the unexpected controversy that tied up the huge $358,000,000 naval appropriation bill for three days and removed a last minute threat of a special session of the new congress.

After breakfasting with the president, house and senate conferees returned to the capitol and in short order settled all their differences regarding ship construction and midshipmen quotas at the Naval Academy. The senate won a sweeping victory in its battle for public construction of eleven new destroyers, while the house won in its demand for a reduction in the number of midshipmen.

Receives Letter Mailed 15 Years Ago

(International News Service) MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Feb. 27.—Another chapter in the history of the Postoffice Department's untiring efforts to deliver incorrectly addressed mail was ended here when Mrs. John Miller received a letter written to her 15 years ago in Philadelphia by her grandson, Mr. Ellis Kopp.

The missive made the rounds of the country's largest cities spent a few months in the dead letter office in Washington, and finally arrived at its original destination.

Recovers History, Lost 150 Years

(International News Service) AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 27.—A history of Texas, written earlier than 1780, by Father Morfi, a Franciscan priest of the eighteenth century, while in a cell and which disappeared more than 150 years ago, was discovered recently by Carlos E.

Castaneda, Latin-American librarian of the University of Texas.

The history was located in a library at Mexico City. Although the work was unsigned, the history was found to have been Father's Morfi's through the hand-writing.

Castaneda also found in the archives 10,000 pages of manuscript data of the early history of Texas. In Guadalajara from where the first Franciscan expedition was undertaken by Alonzo de Leon Castaneda found 5,000 manuscript pages relating to the matter part of the seventeenth century.

Mahoning County Judges Ask Governor Take Charge Of Investigation

(International News Service) YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 27.—The proposed investigation of local utility rates and the charges against Harry Engle, former traction commissioner, today were cloaked with an air of uncertainty following the refusal of Ray Thomas, county prosecutor, to act with the common pleas court judges.

The judges sought to ask an investigation at the hands of the state while Thomas refused to join with them in making the request of state officials.

Meanwhile, the judges renewed their demands for a state investigation of both charges and have asked Governor White to act in the probes.

Thomas recently charged Engle with using his office as traction commissioner to further a $150,000 alleged conspiracy.

Engle in turn charged Thomas with being the "tool" of a local utility company which he charges is conducting the attacks on his office.

King Albert Obeys Order To "Move-On"

(International News Service) MURREN, Switzerland, Feb. 27.—The King of the Belgians, as democratic as ever and perhaps a little thinner, was quietly invited to "move on" by men clearing away the snow from one of the large rinks here. King Albert smiled and obeyed.

The much beloved royal pair had barely arrived when they donned their ski-ing costumes, black spectacles, etc., and started forth for the mountains. On the way home, the queen insisted upon going down some of the most dangerous glacier-like slopes and showed great skill as well as pluck.

TEA-ING IN PAJAMAS IS POPULAR IN HAVANA

Claim Record For Number Of Dogs

(International News Service) CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 27.—"Let Rover do it" has been adopted to some extent as the motto of police of Shaker Heights, Cleveland's millionaire suburban residence district.

John Irvin, chief of police of the suburb claims that the district has more dogs than any other suburb of its size—averaging one canine protector to every two residences. Consequently, the suburb has less "second-story" workers, the chief claims.

"Most residents of the suburb have been converted," Irvin says. "We don't have to work nearly so hard; it's a case of let Rover do it." Irvin has two prize police dogs at his own home.

To give added thrills to aquatic sports, a water plane has been made for towing behind a speed boat.

Five Injured By Explosion Of Gas At Warren, Penna.

Plant Of Pennsylvania Gas Company Badly Wrecked By Blast Today

(International News Service) WARREN, Pa., Feb. 27.—Five men were injured, three seriously, two buildings were destroyed and the entire countryside within a three-mile radius was rocked today when a terrific gas explosion wrecked the plant of the Pennsylvania Gas company here.

The injured, all in Warren General hospital:

Frank Nelson, Clark Phillips and Earl Hildum. These three were suffering from severe burns. Two other men, C. P. Slean, vice president of the company, and Kenneth W. Davis, an operator, were less seriously injured and were taken to their homes after being treated by physicians.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately learned. The blast let go while the men were "blowing out" a regulator situated midway between the main plant, a one-story structure of 5,000 square feet constructed of cinder blocks, and the office building of the company.

Both buildings were destroyed. An accumulation of gases in the regulator was believed to have been ignited, causing the detonation.

HEATING SAVES VALUABLE MURALS

(International News Service) EISENBACH, Germany, Feb. 27.—The famous mural frescoes by Moritz von Schwind in the Wartburg, which had been menaced by dampness, have been saved by installing electrical heating throughout the castle. The paintings depict, among other motives, scenes from the life of St. Elizabeth who died just 700 years ago. The heat pipes are concealed in the walls and do not detract from the appearance of the historic rooms. It was in the Wartburg that Luther translated the Bible.

Promises Prompt Start Of World's Fair

(International News Service) CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 27.—Any doubts as to whether the Century of Progress exposition will open, as scheduled, in June, 1933, have been cleared up by Lenox R. Lohr, manager of the exposition.

"As a reply to these doubts," Lohr said in an address, "I may indicate the administration building, fully completed and occupied for more than two months by the working force; the transportation building, the erection of which will be finished in March; the completed replica of old Fort Dearborn, and a new drive on the world's fair grounds. "Attention is called to the fact that all this has been accomplished two and one-half years before the date set for the opening. For the San Francisco exposition the fire building was not completed until two years before the opening.

"We feel justified in feeling that, in view of the progress made thus far in advance, there is no doubt of the ability of Chicago to complete the undertaking in ample time."

Bar Association Of New York Bans Women From Club

Vote Down Proposition To Admit Women Members To Privileges

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Bar Association of the City of New York has decided that it is "inadvisable" to admit women to membership.

In a meeting at which there were four times the usual number of members present and after two hours of heated debate, an amendment to the organization's constitution providing that "there shall be no discrimination on account of sex" was voted down.

Two-thirds of the total vote of 249 was required to carry the amendment, or 166. Only 136 voted in favor of the amendment.

Members in favor of admitting women to membership quoted the constitution to show that the club was organized as "an establishment to cultivate the science of jurisprudence, facilitate the administration of justice, elevate the legal profession and cherish the spirit of brotherhood among lawyers."

This, it was pointed out, did not aim to make the association a man's club. Women, those in favor of the amendment said, could aid in "cultivating" the science of law as well as men. And certainly, the debaters said, there could be no objection on the ground that they would not help to "elevate" the profession.

Those arguing against feminine membership agreed that women were eligible, but pinned their fight on the point that it was "inadvisable" to permit them to join.

The Bar Association was founded at a time when there were no women lawyers; it could not possibly have been meant to include women, it was claimed.

A practical argument was that if women were allowed to membership there would have to be an extensive alteration of the club rooms and that this would be expensive. It was also stated that there would be only about 50 women members if the fair sex were allowed in the association, and that this was not a great enough number to warrant the male lawyers putting themselves out to be agreeable when the women were around.

These arguments were closed with the remark that if women attorneys wanted a bar association they could start one themselves.

The motion to admit women into the organization was voted down even after it was pointed out that similar organizations throughout the country now allow women members. In New York women lawyers are eligible for membership in the American Bar Association, and the various county associations.

Those opposed to having women lounging in their club rooms, however, would not be moved. They stood firm and threatened to carry the argument far into the night. Finally the vote was taken after a motion was passed to close the discussion.

Harness Hot Springs To Heat Iceland

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 27.—Natural furnaces in Iceland, hundreds of feet below the surface of sub-artic Iceland, may prove the forerunners of new developments by heating and ventilating engineers.

A report placed before the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers convention here outlined plans for extensive exploiting of the hot springs of Iceland for use as natural heating systems.

"Wells are drilled to varying depths and hot water gushes from them," declared the report of Ben Gronblad, of Iceland. "It is simple to pipe the water to homes and buildings."

Reykjavik, the capital, already is being equipped for the natural "furnace" and other cities and communities will follow suit.

The report pointed out that while women for centuries have washed clothes at the hot springs which dot Iceland, actual development of the home-heating idea has been started only during the past year. "If properly utilized, the hot water underlying Iceland may make the island independent of all importations of fuel," the report predicted.

Hollywood Develops As Financial Center

(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Feb. 27.—Hollywood today is one of the richest financial and industrial centers of the west.

During the last ten years the film city has enjoyed tremendous and extensive development.

The vast increase in financial and industrial activities has insured the film city a firm financial footing and it is now considered one of the richest western business centers.

Figures show that in 1930 Hollywood had property holdings and buildings with an appraised value of $496,177,780, while in 1910 its property holdings were valued at $20,000,000. These figures were computed from the official assessed valuation.

In line with the tremendous growth of the cinema city, plans have been announced for the construction of a limit-height skyscraper to be erected in the heart of Hollywood. The structure will be 13 stories high. This is only a part of the extensive building program that has been carried on in the city.

Offers To Build Largest Airport

(International News Service)

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 27.—What is believed will be one of the largest airports in the world is soon to be established in the heart of the lava beds of Socorro county, New Mexico.

Far from any city, on the isolated wastes of New Mexico, midway between Albuquerque, N. M. and El Paso, Texas, the port would be built. Ellison Warren, owner of the Rar L slash ranch, 110 miles south of Albuquerque, has offered to construct a landing field consisting of two runways each 200 feet wide and not less than 3,500 feet long.

The airport is to be placed at the disposal of the Midcontinent Air Express which operates between El Paso and Albuquerque, according to the offer made officials of the company here.

The whirl of planes is expected to detract somewhat from the loneliness of the vast cattle ranges of Socorro county, described as one of the last strongholds of the old-time cattleman in the West.

NEW YORK POLICE FACE BIG MYSTERY IN BEAUTY'S MURDER

grafting, framing and shaking down of unfortunate women.

She was an attractive, titian-haired woman of 32, a former model and rather well-known in the night life of the city. She had a police record which began in 1923 with her arrest on a vice charge under the name of Benita Bishoff.

The body was found at the foot of an embankment in Van Cortlandt park early yesterday. She had been strangled with a clothes line and tossed from an automobile.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney took personal charge of the investigation of the strangling of Miss Gordon. Detectives were sent scurrying in all directions for clues.

Two Detained.

The two men detained as material witnesses in the case are John Radloff of Brooklyn, the slain woman's attorney, and Sam Cohen, a client of Radloff's. They were taken into custody after an entry had been found in one of several diaries kept by Miss Gordon, which read, according to the commissioner, as follows:

"The only man I have to fear is R—. He could get C— or henchmen to do away with me."

On the theory that the "R" referred to was Radloff, the latter was apprehended.

Radloff and Cohen both are understood to have denied they had any knowledge of her intention of going to the appellate division's investigators to tell how she had been "framed" by the police. He had advised against such a step.

He reminded her, he said, that her case was 80 years old and therefore nothing could be gained by re-opening it.

"I'm going to give McLaughlin the needle, anyway—just to get even," Radloff quoted her as saying.

The McLaughlin referred to is believed to be Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin of the vice squad, who arrested her in 1923 on a charge of immorality, with the result that she was sent to the Bedford reformatory.

Sailed For Bermuda.

McLaughlin has been on a five-day leave. He sailed last Monday for Bermuda. When he arrives here Saturday he will be questioned by Commissioner Mulrooney.

The police were searching through the city's pawnshops for a $2,000 diamond ring and a $2,000 mink coat Miss Gordon was wearing when she left her apartment Wednesday night. Usually she went out at night and returned at dawn, the authorities were informed, but Thursday morning she failed to return to her apartment.

ment. Her lips had been silenced forever.

Her divorced husband, John Bishoff, who is a deputy United States marshal on duty in Washington, D. C., was expected to arrive in New York soon. The police planned to question him, too. Bishoff's home is in Audubon, N. J.

Detectives arrived in Audubon this morning to try to obtain from Audubon police a letter written by Miss Gordon to her former husband. The letter was turned over to the Audubon authorities by the present Mrs. Bishoff, who married Bishoff in August, 1924, two months after he obtained a divorce from his first wife—the slain beauty—in Philadelphia on the ground of cruelty.

Search Scene Shifts.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 27.—The frantic search for the slayers of Vivian Gordon, pretty red-headed New York showgirl, and one of the witnesses called to appear against the policemen in the investigation of the New York vice squad, shifted to this vicinity today, when New York detectives visited the home of John E. C. Bishoff, the dead woman's divorced husband, at Audubon, near here.

Bishoff is a deputy U. S. marshal stationed at Washington and he was ordered away on duty at the time. The detective, however, quizzed his second wife, Mrs. Eunice Bishoff, 32, and the 16-year-old daughter of Bishoff and the dead woman. The latter is a freshman student at the Audubon high school.

Mrs. Bishoff informed the detectives that the slain woman had written Bishoff frequently in the past few years demanding custody of their daughter. The last letter received during the latter part of January was written in Brooklyn, N. Y., January 19, she said. In it Vivian referred to the alleged "framing" of girls by New York police and accused Bishoff of having aided in "framing" her. It was found among Bishoff's effects and Sergeant Dewey Parker of the state police of New Jersey took charge of it.

Dear Mr. Bishoff:

"You have probably heard about the vice investigation now going on in New York City which is growing day by day, that a number of convicted girls were framed by the police and by others."

"You know that I am one of them."

CLIMATE HERE IS HELP TO CATARRH

Experts Say Three In Every Five People Suffer From This Disease

Experts on catarrh say the climate of this part of the country is one of the chief reasons why catarrh is so prevalent here.

Experts state that catarrh is so prevalent in this section that as many as three out of every five people suffering from the disease and its distressing symptoms, which are dripping into the throat of a poisonous, offensive substance, a great deal of stomach, discharges from the nose of large quantities of this same substance, pains in the head, business, dryness and soreness of nasal passages and throat, weak, watery eyes and the like.

World's Tonic offers catarrh sufferers something they have long needed, that is, a systemic treatment to help fight catarrh. It helps relieve almost at once the distress of catarrh in the nose and throat and at the same time helps fight the disorganizes, and is designed to help rid the system of catarrh, also chronic constipation, liver, kidney, bladder and bowel trouble. It has brought astonishing results in many cases. World's Tonic, the new systemic treatment that is doing so much good in New Castle and vicinity, is sold by Eckert's, McKee's, Paisley's, Smith's, and all other good druggists.

"You may think you have had the last laugh, but get this: I am going before the investigating committee this week and I intend to tell the whole story."

"When I am through it will be just too bad for you, and little Benita is old enough now to realize what a dirty trick you played. I intend to go the limit."

"Although I am not interested in hearing from you, if there is anything you wish to say, you can write to me in care of my attorney, John A. Radloff, 66 Court street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—and mark the letter strictly personal."

"Yours truly,"

Little Benita referred to in the note is the daughter born to Vivian and Bishoff, police said.

Chief Warns About Post Office Parking

Chief of Police C. C. Horner today issued a warning to those motorists, who persistently park on the south or wrong side of North street adjacent to the post office, when visiting the office. Parking is prohibited there because of the tendency to block traffic. Parking is permitted on the north side of the street and if done there will not interfere with traffic. Unless those committing this nuisance cease doing this, they will be tagged and fined. The chief hopes that all motorists will co-operate in this matter and make it unnecessary for them to be tagged and fined.

Bill For Bridge
At Edenburg Is Up To President

Measure Passes Senate On Thursday And Awaits Signature Of Hoover

WILLOW GROVE BILL IS ALSO PASSED

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent of The New Castle News
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 27.—Two proposals authorizing the construction of bridges in Lawrence county, passed the senate yesterday and are now ready for the signature of the president to make them final. The one is the Swick bill, authorizing the state of Pennsylvania to construct and maintain a free highway bridge on Pennsylvania Highway Route No. 444 across the Mahoning river at Edenburg. The other is the Swick-Reed measure, giving similar authority for construction and maintenance of a highway bridge over the Mahoning on Route 18, at Willow Grove.

A technical adjustment in the bill providing for the bridge on Route 18 is necessary before the president can sign it. Both Congressman Swick and Senator Reed introduced bills in the house and senate providing for the same proposal. The two houses have thus acted on separate measures directed toward the same end. It will now be necessary for one of the houses to substitute for its own bill, the similar measure passed by the other house so that both branches of congress will have acted on the same bill. This is a mere formality, however.

The bill referring to the Edenburg bridge was the original Swick bill, which has now passed both houses and is ready for the president's signature. Bridges cannot be constructed over navigable streams without the permission of the federal government, which explains the necessity for the Swick-Reed measures before the state highway department could go ahead with work on the two structures.

Both the bridges are badly needed. The Edenburg bridge would eliminate one of the worst grade crossings in this section of the state, which has claimed the lives of many. The Willow Grove bridge is needed to replace a structure which has long outlived its usefulness, being narrow and crossing the river at a difficult angle.

Indian Parents Solve Perplexing Problem In Unusual Way

By JOSEPH THOMAS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Puzzled as to the faith in which to bring up their five-month-old daughter, because their own religious education differed very widely, Dr. S. Sen and his wife, Indians, resident in London, have had her blessed by representatives of a variety of faiths, so as to allow the baby to choose her own religion as soon as she is old enough to differentiate between the various creeds.

Mrs. Sen, who is a lawyer with Indian qualifications, stated in an interview.

"We did not want our daughter Shanta to be brought up in any particular faith. I was brought up in the Jewish faith, and my husband is a Hindu. We did not think it right to give our daughter a religious label which might develop prejudice against other faiths.

"This does not mean that she will not receive moral instruction," she added. "I shall teach her a moral code of love and service to humanity."

"I invited a representative of every faith to come and bless her. They were all lay people. I had a Jewish blessing delivered in Hebrew, and a Western Christian blessing by a woman who belonged to the Church of England."

"Then there was an Eastern Christian blessing. A Moslem blessing was given in Arabic. A Hindu blessing was delivered in Sanskrit. A Sikh blessing was said in Punjabi. A Buddhist blessing was spoken in Pali, and a Zoroastrian blessing was said in Zend."

Mrs. Sen stated that she intends to send her daughter to the leaders of religion for instruction when she will choose for herself the faith she wishes to follow.

British Trade Ils Blamed On Gold Flow

Indiscriminate Tariff Barriers Also Held Economic Influence

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service Staff
Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 27. — Inequitable distribution of gold and indiscriminate tariff barriers are largely responsible for the present economic condition in Britain, according to Viscount Churchill.

The claim was made by Lord Churchill at the annual meeting of the British Overseas bank.

"France and the United States," he said, "hold about 350 or 400 millions sterling of gold over actual requirements, or more than double the amount held by the Bank of England, whilst other countries, notably Great Britain, Germany and Italy, have inadequate supplies."

"Moreover," he added, "there are no signs of improvement as yet. America's recent attempts to release part of their surplus only culminated in a stock market boom and slump."

Viscount Churchill is chairman of the Great Western railroad and of the British Overseas bank and a director of the P. and O. Line.

Brotherhood Holds Father-Son Banquet

One Hundred Fifty Men and Boys Enjoy Annual Fair in U. P. Church

About 150 men and boys enjoyed an evening together, Thursday, in the New Wilmington United Presbyterian church when the Brotherhood of the church held their annual Father-Son banquet.

The long tables were laid in the dining room of the church and a delicious menu was served by the women of the church.

Howard Temple acted as toastmaster and Dr. Hugh Hart had charge of the pep singing, with Mrs. Margaret McLaughry at the piano, and the hall rang with the voices of the men and boys as they joined in the singing of familiar tunes.

Prof. Eldon Murray of the violin department of the conservatory of music of Westminster college, pleased with several violin numbers, the toast to the fathers was given in a splendid manner by Walker Brownlee, and was heartily responded to by Dr. J. H. McQuiston.

Dr. Charles B. Wingerd, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, New Castle, gave the address of the evening and the points brought out were intensely interesting.

A business session followed the program and Eugene Sampson, president, was in charge. An election was held, which resulted in Daniel McQuiston being chosen president and Howard Temple, secretary-treasurer of the Brotherhood. Concluding the business of the evening, the assemblage then tramped into the recreation rooms of the church and here a program of games and contests aided in the digestion of the splendid banquet.

Who's Who Ask Twin Convicts

(International News Service)
SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., A dark mystery is causing consternation among prison officials here; two dark mysteries, in fact. The mystery is twins, both colored. It has reached the point where even the twins do not know which one is the other fellow. No one can tell them apart, and prison officials doubt if they know themselves just who's who in the family.

The brothers officially are Elgin and Ernest Carson, serving sentences for a murder committed in Los Angeles ten years ago. Elgin's number is 33908 and Ernest's 34115, but even that makes little difference as they have been seen changing clothes on various occasions.

But the chief rub happens to come in the fact that Elgin is eligible for parole, and both are claiming to be Elgin. Ernest was sentenced for life while Elgin received a ten year to life sentence. The parole board, after studying Elgin's case decided to continue until proper identification is made.

Guards at the prison long ago gave up trying to tell which one was guilty of infraction of rules at the prison. They give black marks to both—just to be fair.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Feb. 27. — "Give the men and women that appear before you the breaks," is the advice Governor James Rolph, Jr.,

"Be tolerant and just; don't be too hard-boiled on the bench," he said.

"Be a defender rather than a prosecutor. Don't try to make record and fill the jails. Be kind, be lenient and be humane.

"Give the men and women that appear before you the breaks. Give them the benefit of any doubt. Kindness pays its own rewards."

"And what ever you do, keep smiling," advised Governor Rolph.

Publishes Method To Hasten Millennium

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—"Method of procedure to Hasten the Millennium" is the title of a book just published here. Its author is Fred Townsend Beal, a telegraph operator of Riverhead, Long Island.

A system which would "ultimately eliminate dishonesty" is set forth in the text, in which it is urged that Congress make laws to aid in adjusting the teachings of the Bible to the affairs of life. The author believes that a credit system should be instituted in place of the monetary scheme now in use.

PENNSYLVANIA OFFICIALS APPROVE Studebaker free wheeling

ATTEMPTING to capitalize on the tremendous popularity of Studebaker Free Wheeling, a device has been placed on the market for adding Free Wheeling to conventional cars. It does not have Studebaker's great advantage of positive gear control. Unlike Studebaker Free Wheelers, cars equipped with this device cannot utilize the braking power of the engine at the will of the driver. Therefore, motorists have been warned against it by the Pennsylvania Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

Pennsylvania state officials, on the other hand, have approved Studebaker Free Wheeling as a contribution to safety. Months before Free Wheeling was offered to the public by Studebaker, a Studebaker Free Wheeler was driven to Harrisburg for inspection and test by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. As a result of this test, Deputy Commissioner W. W. Matthews wrote Studebaker as follows:

"I believe that these features will not only add to the comfort and convenience of drivers but will also provide an additional safety feature, especially by reason of the ease with which the shift can be made to second gear in descending inclines, thus providing additional deceleration which is highly desirable in some sections of the country where the highways traverse hills and mountains."

Studebaker Free Wheelers also were submitted to the highway departments of all other states for their approval before this great advancement in automotive safety, economy and performance was placed in production.

His Excellency, The Governor of Pennsylvania, and Captain Wilson C. Price, of the State Highway Motor Patrol, drive Free Wheeling Studebakers.

Studebaker Free Wheeling with positive gear control, which is identical with that of Pierce-Arrow, Lincoln and Hupmobile, should not be confused with any other form of Free Wheeling. Studebaker cars are engineered as to brakes, generator and in all particulars for the efficient, economical operation of Free Wheeling.

All Studebakers now have Free Wheeling. The Studebaker Six ($795 to $905), The Dictator Eight ($1095 to $1250), The Commander Eight ($1385 to $1785), The President Eight ($1850 to $2600). All prices at the factory.

Final Survey For River About Ended

(International News Service)
AMBRIDGE, Pa., Feb. 27.—Final survey of the Kiskiminetus river, expected to bring about the backwatering of the stream, is rapidly nearing completion here.

Test holes for foundations of projected dams and locks on the river are included in the survey, being made by Army engineers as part of the study of American streams to determine best method of utilization of water power, navigation and flood control.

Tentative location for Dam No. 1 has been made at Bagdad, just below Leechburg, and it is expected the site of the structure will be permanently located there. A bill for improvement of the stream is expected to be presented to congress at its next session.

STEAL DOG LICENSES

(International News Service)
SANDUSKY, O., Feb. 27.—Another candidate for the questionable honor of "meanest thief" has been the stealing dog tax licenses from the collars of Sandusky residents' canine pets. Warden Arnold Whetstone, whose dog was one of the victims pointed out that the tax licenses often mean life or death to the wearers and gave notice that the law provides a $100 fine for such thieves.

American Industry On Threshold Of Greatest Progress In History

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—Industrial leaders, if they are to make headway, must face the fact that American industry is on the threshold of the greatest progress in history.

It was the message left with Pittsburgh leaders today by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, who addressed the annual banquet of the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania.

An unprecedented rate of industrial acceleration in the future was foreseen by Swope. Fundamental research, he said, is necessary to progress. Allotment of a definite portion of each year's profit for research and development of more efficient and more economical methods of manufacture is necessitated by the closer coordination of sciences, he said.

Speaking at another meeting composed of business men, engineers and laymen, Swope related the success of the General Electric Company's "unemployment insurance" plan. This plan, he said, began functioning early last year. He expressed confidence that a permanent plan for the assistance of the worker in times of business recession eventually will be worked out by American intelligence spurred by an aroused public conscience.

Conneaut Lake May Get Annual Department Meeting Next June

Although no definite information has been given out as to the 1931 meeting place of the Department of Pennsylvania, Veterans of Foreign Wars, there is a great possibility that the next encampment in June will be held in Conneaut Lake.

Department Commander Aaron R. Gardner recently visited Conneaut Lake and looked over the arrangements. It is expected that a result of the vote of the members of the executive committee will be announced in the near future.

New Castle Man Praises New Herbal Medicine

"Brought Relief To Troubles With Stomach And Nerves After Year Of Suffering," Says Railroad Employee

"Because Nu-Erb has relieved me of stomach troubles after all other medicines had failed, I cannot find words to praise it highly enough," said Mr. March Schawl, 9 E. Clayton St., New Castle, Pa., who has been employed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in this city, for the past 23 years.

MR. MARCH SCHAWL

played by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in this city, for the past 23 years.

"About a year ago, my stomach got badly out of order and up to the time I started using Nu-Erb, it had been continually growing worse. Even the lightest of foods gave me indigestion and a distressing gas formed in my stomach after each meal, from which I could get no relief. I slept poorly at night. I had no appetite to speak of and my nerves seemed to be all on edge.

"I have only been using Nu-Erb a short time, but it helped me from the very first week. Now, I eat just about anything I want and have no trouble afterward with indigestion or gas. My nerves are steady. I sleep soundly at night and I am also feeling better in every way than I have for a long time."

Persons who use Nu-Erb say that there is nothing like this pure herbal medicine for such troubles. It tones and regulates the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and quickly relieves rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Eckerd's Cut Rate Store, is the only place in New Castle, where Nu-Erb may be purchased. Go see the Nu-Erb Man now located there and let him explain to you the merits of this remarkable medicine.

Board Of Trade Meets Thursday

Plans For South Side Bargain Day Are Discussed At Regular Meeting

About 20 members were present at the regular meeting of the South Side Board of Trade which was held on Thursday night in the office of Alderman J. Lee Cooper, East Long avenue.

The report of the membership committee was read. This committee will meet again on next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the office of Alderman Cooper. Plans for a South Side bargain day were discussed. A meeting of the advertising committee has been called for next Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Smith's drug store. Following the meeting a luncheon was served by Hartzell Huston and Alec Samuels.

Alas! It works both ways. Now the neighbors are saying: "Why should I waste money on new pants while Jones' are patched?"

HEALTH RESTORED

"Ten Herbs made me feel like a new man," said Mr. E. M. Jones, R. 1, Box 109, Butler. "My kidneys bothered me and I had inflammatory rheumatism. I had dizzy spells and spots before my eyes."

MR. E. M. JONES

Constipation bothered me. My stomach was out of order and gas and bloating made me feel miserable. I had to arise often at night and was also troubled with nervousness. I tried Ten Herbs and now my health troubles are ended. Rheumatic pains and the pains across my back are gone. I am free of dizzy spells and spots before my eyes and can get sound, restful sleep. My stomach was never better than now and nervousness had been relieved. Ten Herbs deserves my endorsement.

Ten Herbs is sold at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 E. Washington St., and by all leading druggists throughout this entire section.

Fourteen In Russia Held For Conspiracy

(International News Service)
MOSCOW, Feb. 27.—Taking the form of an international political attack against "the bitter enemies of the communist international," the text of the indictment against fourteen Soviet economists charged with conspiracy against the soviet regime was published here today.

The indictment runs to 25,000 words. Prepared by the soviet attorney-general, N. V. Krilenko, it is similar in context to the indictment in the recent sensational counter-revolutionary and sabotage trial of Professor Leonid K. Ramzin and twelve other defendants which held the interest of the world a few months ago.

We are accustomed to complain of the intolerance of some parents toward their children. There is another side. It occurred to me for the first time one day while I was out in Arkansas. One of the charming women of that state, a mother, put this notion into my head.

Now don't get worried, please. She was one in a large group of beautiful women. Arkansas has lots of them. And what beautiful voices they have! She was participating in a round table discussion at a state conference of P. T. A. workers, in Pine Bluff.

Some one in the group referred laughingly to the "foolish notions which the parents of some of us once had. How differently we think today!"

Up rose the lady with the idea which I wish to pass along. "It is all very well for us to laugh at the old fogies which our fathers and mothers were. To many of us their standards do seem to have been very rigid. But they had convictions, they believed in them, they lived by their convictions."

"What have we? What overwhelming beliefs do we really have and live by? What similar standards do we set before our children which we would grimly hold to, even unto death?"

"We who call ourselves modern have gone pleasure mad. Power, money, excitement seem to be our gods."

"Suppose that our children, when they are parents, ridicule us as old fogies and their children's children do likewise; and I guess they will."

"My point is, that whereas we boast about our tolerance, are we not most cruelly intolerant toward the parents of the past? Suppose we go on boasting of our own broad-mindedness, go on laughing before our children, at the narrowness of our forefathers. What will happen then? What effect will our intolerance toward our forebears have upon our children?"

"Shall we, as we generally seem to do, look down upon them as benighted wretches to be pitied by us lords perched on our lofty pinnacles? Shall we ignore their sturdy consciences and their convictions which to some of them were far more dear than life itself?"

"I wonder whether it would not be a stronger sign of character in us if we were to be more sympathetic and more tolerant toward our parents and their parents. I wonder if it were not well for us to try to get their point of view and to put ourselves back occasionally into the social atmosphere in which they lived, and to ask ourselves what virtues and what traits of character they had which we might try to emulate and to hold before our children."

I must confess that her challenge has stirred up in me many questions. Just what do we mean when we say that we are modern? What have we in mind when we compare our tolerance toward our parents with their tolerance toward us? How fast may we safely move? What are we putting in the place of the standards and convictions of our parents and grandparents, which we ridicule and throw upon the scrap heap?

House In Middle Of Highway Will Now Be Torn Down

(International News Service)
MOOSIC, Pa., Feb. 27.—The "House in the Middle of the Road," which for years has blocked extension of the state highway through this bureau, is coming down.

The fight for removal of the house goes back half a dozen years, when a state highway route was laid out and it was found the building was directly in the path of the highway. The borough was to pay the cost of extending the road through its limits, but the treasury was depleted and owners of the house refused to let it be razed until a settlement had been made.

Borough council advertised the house for sale many times, but no purchasers were forthcoming, inasmuch as purchase included the obligation of removing the structure. After many unsuccessful efforts, the building has finally been sold to Thomas Healey for $125 and Healey has contracted to demolish the structure, permitting completion of the road over its original route and removing a detour through an alley which motorists have been forced to use.

DISEASE AND PARASITES TAKE TOLL OF PULLETS

Disease and parasites reduce egg production and increase costs. A study of conditions in several Pennsylvania counties shows that 30 percent of the chicks started each spring die before they reach maturity. Similarly, it has been found that at least one-fifth of the flocks of growing chicks show either coccidiosis or worm infestation. High chick losses increase the cost of raising pullets. Then, too, egg production is lowered after disease and parasite troubles have taken toll.

Poultrymen who raised nearly a half million chicks last year had losses varying from 8 1/2 per cent to 21 1/2 per cent. Those who followed early hatching of disease-free chicks with clean methods of handling the brooder houses, ground, and feed had the lowest loss. Those who used no clean practices had the highest loss. The difference of 13 1/2 per cent in chick losses represents the difference between high and low pullet raising costs.

Adoption or recommended practices proved their value even where used alone. With clean feeding the loss was four and one-half per cent below that with unclean feeding methods. Clean chicks accounted for four more in each hundred living than where the chicks were from unclean stock. Chicks hatched before May 1 had a three per cent better chance of living than those hatched after that date. Clean ground reduced losses one and three-fourths per cent. The clean brooder house prevented nearly one per cent of loss.

SPRAY APPLE TREES TO KILL SAN JOSE SCALE

Dry weather conditions in 1929 and the unusually long hot period last year have increased San Jose scale to the extent where control measures will have to be used if apples free from scale are to be marketed next fall.

In orchards where scale was severe on apples at picking time last fall, the owners should supply a strictly dormant spray of lime-sulphur or a suitable oil spray. The spraying should be very thorough, particularly in the topmost branches and twigs, as these are the places not sprayed so well in recent years. Poor spraying has resulted in the outbreak of San Jose scale.

Plenty of time should be devoted to the applications and every part of the branches should be wet with the liquid or the killing effect of the spray on the San Jose scale will be poor. The application should be completed by the time the ends of fruit buds are beginning to break, especially if oil is used, as some time must elapse between application of the oil and the delayed dormant spray.

The lime-sulphur should be diluted to test 1.03 specific gravity. The oil emulsions should be used at no less than four per cent oil in dilute sprays. Miscible oils should be used according to directions on the containers.

Care should be exercised in the use of oils so that they are not applied during freezing periods or when it is likely that the spray will freeze immediately after application. Lime-sulphur may be applied any time but little is gained by spraying when it will freeze on the trees.

PREVENT STARVATION BY FEEDING BEES NOW

Drought and unemployment have affected the lives of bees in many sections of the state and they, too, need food.

As a result of these adverse conditions many colonies went into winter quarters short of food and these are now in danger of starving. In such cases, late winter feeding will be necessary.

The Bee Keeper should lift the hives in his apiary to estimate their contents of honey. If little or no honey is present, sugar candy may be fed until spring and when warm weather comes sugar syrup can be fed as desired.

To make sugar candy the necessary amount of white granulated sugar should be taken and just enough water be added to dissolve the sugar. Boil the candy until hard. If the candy hardens when dropped on a cold spoon, it is cooked. The candy should be stirred constantly while cooking to prevent discoloration. After cooking the syrup should be poured into shallow pans and allowed to harden.

After the candy becomes hard it can be placed on the top of the frames over the cluster of bees. The bees then can take the sugar as fast as it can be dissolved. Cover the candy and frames with cloth or burlap so that the warmth of the colony cannot escape at the top. A shallow super may be placed above the colony and this be filled with some sort of packing. If the candy bar is not too thick the lid may be replaced without the use of a super.

Care should be the rule in working with the bees during cold weather so that they are not disturbed as little as possible. Bee Keepers are cautioned against feeding the bees candy unless the colonies are in danger of starvation.

CLEAN PENS GIVE PIGS CHANCE TO BE HEALTHY

Sanitary farrowing pens help to prevent young pig losses.

A pen is sanitary only when all litter and dirt has been removed, the floor and walls for two feet or more from the floor have been washed carefully with scalding lye water, and a disinfectant has been applied to the walls.

One pound of lye to 30 gallons of boiling water is the proportion of use in making the washing solution.

Liquor cresolis, which may be obtained at any drug store, is used for the disinfectant. Mix in the proportion of one part of liquor cresolis to 30 parts of water. The disinfectant probably will reach some corners and surfaces not touched by the boiling water and lye. This treatment will make the pen safer for the young pigs.

Fresh, clean straw is the most desirable bedding. Soiled bedding should not be used. A pen should be bedded lightly at farrowing time and for a few days following.

Slips In Bathroom Sues Old Friend

(International News Service)
DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 27.—Alleging she sustained serious injuries when she fell on a slippery bathroom floor in the home of her host, Mrs. J. G. Matthews has led suit against George L. Moore here for $16,000.

Mrs. Matthews, long a friend of the Moore family, was invited guest in the Moore home several months ago when, her petition alleged, the accident occurred.

Going into the bathroom at 2 o'clock in the morning, Mrs. Matthews averts, she slipped because of water standing on the tile floor and fell, suffering a dislocated hip and leg and a permanently injured spine. She alleges the Moores were negligent in allowing such a condition as a wet floor to exist.

Addition To Home Near Completion

Thirty Two New Rooms Are Added To Home At Zelienople

ZELIENOPLE, Feb. 27.—Work of furnishing the new addition to the old people's home here is almost completed, and the new rooms will be ready for use in a very short time.

The 32 new rooms to the building that have been maintained by the Lutheran churches of the Pittsburgh Synod for the past several years, were completed about the first of the year. Book Tells Principles Of Science

Knowledge Of The Body In Health And Disease Necessary

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

No one can begin to know about the human body and its management in health and disease unless he knows something of the fundamental principles of the basic sciences. For this purpose I recommend a thoroughly up-to-date book by H. G. Wells, Julian Huxley and G. P. Wells, called "The Science of Life."

To begin with, I like the title, "The Science of Life," rather than the more formal, and now overused word "biology."

It indicates the avoidance of technical terms and scientific airs characteristic of the contents of the book.

It is an account of life processes sufficiently comprehensive to meet the needs of any person even of the broadest modern culture. It is the most complete work of its kind I have ever seen, and contains the meat of a dozen volumes.

Thomas A. Edison is recently quoted as saying that it seems very hard nowadays to find a good doctor.

An astonishing statement! We are supposed to be better off for doctors than we ever were. About 25 years ago Dr. Abraham Flexner, who has just published a book on "Universities," revolutionized the teaching of medicine in the United States. His report caused all the little medical schools with insufficient equipment to shut up shop. American medical schools were all remodeled on the plan of Johns Hopkins or Harvard.

The amount of money spent on medical education in the interval has been staggering. Requests of 15 or 20 millions of dollars on the medical schools of such places as Vanderbilt university, Columbia, California and Leland Stanford have become commonplace.

Thousands of physicians from such institutions are put into circulation every year. And yet Mr. Edison says it is hard nowadays to find a good doctor. What have the medical faculties to say about this?

Is it possible that the machinery of medical education today has been made too elaborate? That such schools turn out merely research workers and dreamers?

Mr. Edison has always been distinguished for two qualities—the ability to see and voice a general need, and a strong grasp of the practical requirements of a situation. What he says cannot be ignored.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. C. S. Ohio: "Can a woman safely give birth to a healthy child for the first time at forty?"

Answer: Certainly. I once attended a woman who married late in life and contributed twins to the world at the age of forty-two. Medical history records some remarkable cases. The Cincinnati Inquirer, in January, 1863, printed the following article: "Dr. W. MacCarthy was in attendance on a lady of sixty-nine years, on Thursday night, last, who gave birth to a fine boy. The father of the child is seventy-four years old, and the mother and child are doing well."

"Can you refer me to any books?" Answer: Send a stamped, return envelope and 2 cents to the Central Press Association, 1435 E. 12th street, Cleveland, O., for a "List of Books for the Expectant Mother."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Three Murder Cases Listed In Luzerne

(International News Service) WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 27.—Three murder cases are listed for hearing by the Luzerne county grand jury when it convenes here for its March session.

The cases are those of Tony Morrell, charged with the slaying of Charles Calcamara in Pittston; Elmer Banta, police chief of Pringle, who is charged with fatally shooting his wife at their home last Christmas eve; and Sam Boccia, Nanticoke, who shot and killed his wife when she attempted to save from his wrath a boarder in their home with whom Boccia found his wife in a compromising situation.

No More Dancing, Floor Is Sagging

(International News Service) WORMLEYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—Members of Wormleysburg's fire company will trip the light fantastic in the town hall no more.

Not, at least, until a new floor is installed.

Seeking to raise money for purchase of a new fire engine, the fire company announced it would hold a subscription dance. The dance was held, and below, James Snyder, grocer, sat; trepidation, watching the floor sag beneath the dancing feet.

Snyder protested to the borough council. At a special meeting, the property committee forbade any more dances until the floor was braced—and forgot to set a date for the improvement.

KIDNEYS DID NOT FUNCTION

Mrs. ANNA L. DE HAVEN

Camden, N. J.—"I just seemed to be down and out physically, was rundown and weak, my nerves were in bad shape, my kidneys did not function, and I had a lot of poison in my system." But after taking a course of Dr. Pierce's medicines I was greatly improved in health. I took his "Favorite Prescription" and "A-nuric Tablets" in alternate doses. The "Prescription" restored my nerves and Dr. Pierce's A-nuric cleared up my kidneys and drove the poisons out of my system. I cannot say enough in praise of these wonderful medicines. — Mrs. Anna L. Church Janitor Merely Pulls Switch To Get Programs

(International News Service)

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 27.—The pipe organ of the First Baptist Church concluded the last strains of "Rock of Ages" and the janitor, E. D. Chandlee, settled back in his chair in the basement of the church when sharply and distinctly came the wail of a saxophone "bearing down" on a popular dance tune. Chandlee could not understand how the radio from the apartment across the alley could possibly play so loudly without driving every one out of the building. He dismissed the matter from his mind and listened to "My Baby Just Cares for Me" as the services were carried on in the auditorium above his head.

The religious ceremonies were completed and the congregation had filed out of the auditorium when the janitor, seeing no further use for lights in the building, pulled the electric switch. Immediately his dance program stopped. Chandlee shoved the switch in again. He had missed only a few notes of the piece being played.

Investigation revealed that by some freak of electricity the switch of the church is perfectly tuned to the local broadcasting station WHO so that now Chandlee can listen either to a broadcast or the services above him as he so desires.

Flivver Driver Loses Speed Bet With Policeman

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 27.—It's a hard job to keep pace with the times, but Bobbie Holcomb's flivver demonstrated its ability to hold its own.

Bobbie was hurrying along a street here, a little too spry, according to officers. He was clocked at 42 miles an hour. Officers Pate and Huston drew up alongside Bobbie's decrepit machine and asked him where he was going so fast.

Holcomb denied he was going 42 miles an hour and wagered that his flivver wouldn't make 30 miles an hour. Bobbie said if his flivver would make more than 30 they could have it. The policeman took him on.

Officer Pate drove Holcomb's flivver and Huston followed in a police car. Bobbie's car showed its heels and made the speedometer climb to 42.

"I lose," said Bobbie. "She's yours."

"Never mind," Officer Pate replied. "I wouldn't have it as a gift. Come along with us."

Holcomb was turned loose upon his own recognition.

Kidnaping Is Solved After Sixteen Years

OWATONNA, Minn., Feb. 27.—The sixteen-year-old mystery of a gypsy kidnaping has been solved through the chance remark of a telegraph operator.

In 1914 Mrs. Burke lived near Crookston with her two boys, three and six years old. One day they were sent on an errand and never returned. Evidence indicated that they had been kidnapped by a band of gypsies. Five years later the elder boy was found and said that they had been kidnapped by the gypsies.

Recently Mrs. Burke was in a telegraph office at Spring Valley, Wis., when she overheard the operator tell how a band of gypsies had left two children at the Owatonna State School for Boys several years before.

Mrs. Burke checked with authorities and learned that the younger lad had been registered under the name of Cook.

Since that time he had left the school and was at Portsmouth, Va., the authorities told her.

Making a telephone call to Portsmouth, Mrs. Burke identified the child, now grown up, through a birthmark carried on his ankle.

A Small Deposit Will Hold Any Garment Until Wanted

Bo Broadway by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Jane Cowell says: "Brains are more important to a woman than beauty."

Longacre Lil says: "I'd like to argue that out with Jane, provided, of course, that before the debate began we could agree on a definition of 'important.'"

IN THE LITERARY FIELD.

Alexander Woolcott, New York's pet book reviewer, used to be a dramatic critic. He graduated from that into a professional booster of coffee, cigars and neckties; and today, as "The Early Book Worm," bestows crowns of laurel, roses, laurels and pampers, all nicely twined, on the brows of certain Lit'ry Lads and Lassies.

He's been doing his best, for several weeks, to make a "best seller" of a book called "Education of a Princess." The book is the work of Marie, Grand Duchess of Russia, who migrated to New York not so long ago and took a job in a Fifth Avenue department store where they sell $600 lace panties.

New York, today, it's supposed to be the "smart" thing to be seen with Marie, and to rave about her book.

The list of best-sellers, non-fiction, is still led by "The Story of San Michele," one of the greatest books written in the last twenty-five years.

Axel Munthe's masterpiece is to Marie's blurb what a Wyoming cyclone is to a school-girl's sigh.

PLEASE THE POPULACE At Hardiman, the British sculptor, did an equestrian statue of the late Field Marshal Lord Haig and London has been giving him the razz. They're criticizing him because he placed the distiller Field Marshal in a slouching position, without a hat, astride a nag that Lieut.-Colonel McTaggart, one of the best known British authorities on horses, calls "a fiddle-headed, peacocky, weak-necked, flat-sided, long-backed, straight-shouldered, herring-gutted, useless beast."

The "artistic conception" in matters of that kind seldom agrees with the popular idea. What the expert calls "artistic" the man in the street regards as slab-sided. When the Liberty Lions were swung into place at 5th Ave. and 42nd St. some years ago New York almost went into a civil war over them.

St. Gaudens did a statue of General Sherman which stands at the Plaza entrance to Central Park. The first-time Marse Henry Watterson, one-time Confederate scout and journalist, genius of Kentucky, caught a glimpse of Sherman, in bronze astride his gallant charger, led by an angel, Marse Henry remarked: "Just like the ——— to make the lady walk!"

THE PATH TO SUCCESS. Billy Watson, burley-cue-king—the one and only "Herman Krausemeyer, of Krausemeyer's Alley"—is today engaged in the real estate business in Paterson, N. J.

A newspaper man, writing a treatise on burlesque, arranged an interview with the veteran.

"You come on over to my office in Paterson," said Watson on the phone. "I'll have the whole story written for you when you get here."

He was as good as his word. Following is an excerpt from Brother Watson's prepared "copy":

"When I was in Paterson recently for a quick visit, I ran up to see Billy Watson and found him sitting in his shirt sleeves busily engaged with his real estate activities. Running true to form, Billy had several handsome typists and clerks, all happy at work in such environment.

Today, Mr. Watson is one of the keenest, shrewdest men in the real estate game. . . . It is almost unbelievable that a man, used to the more or less exciting life of the theatre, could settle down to the routine that his business demands. But he has demonstrated that the same qualities that made him "King of Burlesque" are bringing him the same measure of success in this business. . . . When I got curious and asked Billy how he managed to secure the volume of business he modestly answered: "Honesty and square shooting. One can't help but succeed with such a policy!"

WORTHY PROGENITORS.

And don't forget that the originator of "Billy Watson's Beef Trust"—th man whose girls, when they lined up on the stage, opened their rosy mouths and went to work on a number "could break a pane of plate glass at ninety paces"—was one of the products of The Gay Nineties that the hollow-chested, cigar-root-suckin', gin-swigin' enervates of this present Raspberry Era set fit to sneer at.

"ARE YOU HOME TONIGHT?"

Laborers Wanted

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest. Luke 10:2.

By Dr. ALVIN E. BELL
Luke alone records this incident of our Lord's sending out the 70 missionaries "two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself was about to come." When he sent out the 12 previously he limited their ministry "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." This was the logical place to begin. So the limitation he set was quite logical, but for the time being only "Go not into the way of the Gentiles and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not." Now these restrictions can be removed and the gospel messengers spread out "into every city and place." It is a fore-shadowing of that final great commission: "Go ye into all the world and make disciples of all nations." Jesus is the Saviour of all the world. Samaritan and Gentile as well as Israel.

His Commands—His Enablings
Jesus sends no one into his service without adequate equipment. He foots the bill for his servants. His commands are his enablings. He will provide for all our needs as they arise. "Go your ways; behold I send you forth as lambs in the midst of wolves. Carry no purse, no wallet, no shoes; and salute no man on the way." The business is too urgent to permit the wasting of time in lengthy salutations. Financial interests and social entanglements must not be permitted to interfere with the unhampered progress of their work. "Into whatsoever house ye shall enter—in that same house remain, eating and drinking such things as they give for the laborer is worthy of his hire. Go not from house to house." The missionary need make no apologies, he is no beggar; he gives value received and manifold in addition.

The Message of Peace
The missionaries' message was one of peace: "Into whatsoever house ye shall enter, first say, 'Peace be to this house and if a son of peace be there, your peace shall rest upon him; but if not it shall turn to you again.' Behold I send you forth as lambs in the midst of wolves." "Colossal folly," the world calls it, yet the centuries prove the survival of the lamb of God and his followers over the wolves of persecution. Mahatma Gandhi's recent release from prison and his power in Indian affairs today represent the survival of the spiritual over the material, and the power of the message of peace over force. In that day the message of peace was effective over every power of evil and it must be so. "And the 70 returned with joy saying, Lord, even the demons are subject unto us in thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven."

Spiritual Sight
It is difficult to get folks to see this power of the spiritual over the material and of peace over violence because these things "are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2:14). But that they are spiritually discerned is evident in Christ's prayer: "In that same hour He rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, 'thank Thee, O Lord of Heaven and earth, that thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes, yea Father for so it was well pleasing in thy sight.'"

(The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 1 is Luke 10: 1-11, 17, 21, 22, the subject being: "Jesus Sending Forth Missionaries," and the golden text, Luke 10:2. "The Harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the Harvest that he would send forth laborers into his harvest.")

Blacksmith Makes Remarkable Lamp

Pounds It Out Of Raw Sheet Metal And Has Unique Specimen

Dull moments in the blacksmith business afford Clarence "Cal" Miller, one of the few who remain here to follow the trade, time enough to pound out of raw sheet metal ingenious objects artistic in design and practical for every day use.

Miller's time is largely taken up by his force work and other duties, but like in every man's job there's always a time when opportunity can be found for injecting energy into some likable side task. To Miller, hand-wrought metal work is about the most enjoyable thing there is.

He's made different things from time to time, but it took his very latest piece of work to shed light on the worthwhile hobby that he follows. Lately he completed a fine-looking floor lamp, one of standard height with a shade and everything.

The floor rest upon which his lamp stands is a remarkable job in itself, the symmetrical curves and trimmings presenting the best evidence of Miller's skill and master workmanship.

But the shade takes the eye first; it's different from those on most lamps. Shaped like a square house with windows, doors, chimney and all, the shade is the most striking thing of all. It's unique inasmuch as the windows contain regular glass, and while the light bulbs burn it gives a true resemblance of a house.

Up and down the lamp posts are hand-wrought flower petals, created for ornament what otherwise would only have been a plain-looking post. From each side of the stand, halfway up, extend supports for a smoker's ash tray.

"The lamp," the maker said, "was built expressly for my own use. It is on exhibition in the window at Kirk, Hutton and Co. When people are through viewing it I plan to remove it to my home on Lorain avenue."

Towel Returned To Greensburg Hotel

(International News Service)
GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—A strong man is J. Paul Rue, manager of a hotel here, but his nervous system won't stand many such shocks as it got when he received the following letter:

"Dear Sir,
I am returning a towel which I took for a souvenir from your place about four years ago. I beg forgiveness and I pray that I shall never do such a thing again. I know the Lord forgave me but I felt I should return it."
(Signed) A Child of God.

The towel and letter had been posted from Freeport, Ill.

Drunken Drivers To Get More Tests

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—Woe to the intoxicated driver who runs afoul of the law in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief surgeon for the police department, dissatisfied with the straight-line walking test, now plans to ask in addition a dozen or so questions about the engine number of the car, license figures, size of the tires, size of the wheel base, and the amount of gas that should be left in the tank.

Then, if he isn't too dizzy, the subject will be asked to walk the traditional straight line.

Given Permission To Raise Taxes

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 27.—The supervisors of Delaware township have been granted permission to increase the tax levy for the year from 10 to 15 mills. The petition stated that the township has entered into a contract with the state and county to carry out a road building program and that the funds from a 10 mill levy will not be sufficient to carry out the work and meet the fixed expenses of the township.

CHINESE SHORTHAND
PIEPING Feb. 27.—The miracle of seeing a man write 184 complicated Chinese characters or words in two minutes was the treat offered to an amazed audience here when Li Hsueh-chum demonstrated his system of Chinese shorthand.

English Plunge On Many Kinds Of Lotteries

LONDON, Feb. 27.—England probably the greatest nation of gamblers in the world, will not legally lotteries, yet a large part of her population hold tickets in them. Nearly every Englishman has, at some time or another, held a ticket or part of a ticket in the Calcutta Derby sweepstakes, and many send to Spain for shares in the Spanish national lotteries.

But the craze for gambling has been given added impetus by an act passed by the Irish Free State government legalizing sweepstakes for specific purposes. The success of the first of these, the Manchester November handicap, has been so remarkable that it is understood that the British government is to give close consideration to the large participation of Englishmen in it.

The Manchester November handicap sweepstakes is, however, only the first of several such lotteries. There will be "sweeps" on the Grand National steeplechase, the Derby, and the St. Leger. It is even anticipated that the Irish sweepstakes on the Derby may exceed in prize money the Calcutta "sweep."

Says Bananas Are Eaten Before Ripe

Everybody has seen bananas. Most people eat them. Yet there probably is more current misinformation about bananas, said Dr. Forman T. McLean of the New York Botanical Garden, in a recent lecture at that institution, than about any other fruit. Bananas do not grow on trees, but on a plant which is really an overgrown herb, like cabbage or beets. The tall stalk of the banana plant is not woody like a tree trunk, but is made of the stems of the banana leaves wrapped around one another.

An almost universal habit in America, Dr. McLean said, is to eat bananas before they are really ripe, which is one reason why many people believe them to be indigestible. A fruit with a clear, bright yellow skin, a little green at the tip, may be most pleasing to the eyes, but it is not ripe enough to eat. Banana eaters should wait until the outside of the fruit is speckled all over with brown, so that the average fruit store is about ready to throw it away. Then the inside is at its best.

Suggests Prison Without Walls

(International News Service)
DENVER, Feb. 27.—A prison without walls for Colorado's convicted criminals is being advocated by Bishop Irving P. Johnson of the Episcopal Church, recently appointed chairman of the Colorado board of corrections, governing body of the prison. Bishop Johnson heartily endorses the plan set forth recently by Samuel A. Lewisohn, chairman of the commission to investigate prison administration and construction in New York. Lewisohn recommends parole under careful guidance and assistance for all but a small percentage of the more incorrigible prisoners.

Court Of Honor
Advance Scouts
Of City TroopsFebruary Award Ceremonies
Occur In Downtown
Church Last Night

Promotions to higher ranks of Scoutdom were justly conferred upon a large group of the city's Boy Scouts last night at the regular February session of the northern district court of honor of the Lawrence County council, held in the auditorium of the First Christian church, public square.

Present to pass judgment on the applications of the boys were court members, Rev. G. S. Bennett, Herbert G. Horton and C. W. Hicks. Rev. Bennett presides at each court as chairman.

At the outset of the program the aims and objects of a court ceremony were explained. Rev. Bennett immediately assuming his role of chairman. Parents and friends of the scouts, with a number of the other boys, attended.

Two of the district's leading troops, Troop 55 of the Trinity Episcopal church and Troop 17 of the First Presbyterian brought large delegations. Both had a large representation sharing in the evening's awards. Scoutmaster T. G. Lewis accompanied Troop 55, while the Troop 17 leader also attended.

Get Advancements
Once the opening formalities were over, Chairman Bennett called upon the following scouts individually to receive their new awards:

Tenderfoot to second class—William Bilger, Russell Garner, Bob Johnson, Ben Johnson and William Parshall, all of Troop 55; Dick Hamilton and Robert Love, Troop 17, and James Gravenstreiter, Troop 37.

Second class to first class—Russell Gustafson, William Shira and Bud McCormick, all of Troop 17.

Merit badges then were awarded to the following:

Ted Colechicki, Troop 4, (second class) for pathfinding and personal health. William Leitch, Troop 4, (first class) for bookbinding, first aid, personal health and public health.

Donald Allen, Troop 13, for carpentry, first aid to animals, handicraft and wood carving. John McClelland, Troop 13, for carpentry, first aid to animals and wood carving.

Robert Ray, Troop 15, for camping, reading and cooking. Haskell Kitchen, Troop 15, for personal health, first aid, public health, woodwork; now of Star Scout rank.

Roger H. Rowe, Troop 17, for bird study, civics, bookbinding, physical development; now of Star Scout rank. Russell Gustafson, Troop 17, (second class) for leathercraft. Robert Lee Moore, Troop 17, for bird study and farm mechanics.

Clare Hanna, Troop 55, (second class) for photography and handicraft. Scouts Haskell Kitchen and Robert Ray, both of Troop 17, also rank as junior assistant scoutmasters from now on.

Executive Speaks
Concluding the program, Scout Executive Horton gave a short address. In his remarks he emphasized the need of more men to enlist as merit badge counselors, and also outlined some of the coming events in scouting.

Dr. Bennett formally closed the ceremonies, announcing March 26 as the date when the court will convene next. The scout benediction adjourned the program.

Gin Orgy Death Trial Starts

The trial has opened at Valparaiso, Ind., of Virgil Kirkland, who is charged with the slaying of 18-year-old Arlene Draves. The police allege that after a party, at which gin flowed freely, Kirkland and four other youths criminally attacked Miss Draves.

Being unable to arouse her, they took the girl to a doctor. On discovering she was dead, the doctor notified the police. Picture shows, left, the late Arlene Draves. Upper right, Judge Grant Grumpacker, who is hearing the trial; lower right, Virgil Kirkland in court.

LITTLE PROGRESS MADE BY SENATE
IN P. S. C. PROBE

viewpoint today as speculation turned upon the probably course which the House inquiry along the same lines will take next week.

Sharp Questioning
So far, the Senate committee has shown willingness to hear exactly what a large number of Public Utility officers have to say in their own defense. In each case those who have appeared have been subjected to the sharp cross questioning one of the state's most famous criminal lawyers, William A. Gray, who represents the governor before the committee.

Because of the mutual bitterness between them and the governor, interest so far has centered upon the one appearance of General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and James S. Benn, Public Service Commissioner, who was a frequent witness during the past week.

General Atterbury seemed proud of his opposition to Gifford Pinchot as governor of the state but he denied repeatedly that the railroad he heads had been used against the Pinchot candidacy or that coercion had been used either upon employees or businessmen to that end.

The several appearances of Benn gave Gray frequent opportunities to attempt to fasten upon him some of the charges which have been cast in his direction. Benn's part in the deeply involved P. R. T. situation in Philadelphia was most frequently under fire.

Benn's statement that he did not know the P. R. T. is now operating in Philadelphia was frequently the target for Gray's sarcasm. Such operation is in violation of the commission's orders and Benn refused to admit any knowledge of it.

The so-called "secret meeting" held in the office of General Atterbury on a September Sunday morning in 1928 was probed from every possible angle. Atterbury, Benn, Mayor Harry Mackey, Edwin R. Cox, President of the Philadelphia City Council, all united in solemnly declaring that the meeting had no sinister purpose. In the words of Mackey, the meeting was secret because so far as he knew "the public had not been invited." Each had his own story of the meeting and they all stuck to it with little or no deviation.

Some phase of the P. R. T. operation or financing has been almost constantly before the commission for the past decade. Committee members and counsel admitted some of the problems that bear on P. R. T. are difficult to understand so far as clarifying them goes, little progress was made.

Joyce Admits Fee
The admission of Coleman Joyce, a vice president and counsel for P. R. T. that in 1925 he had received a fee of $150,000 in addition to his salary of $12,000 was one of the things brought out in Gray's questioning. Joyce, however, denied that he received $262,000 as shown in a study made of the P. R. T. by Milo Malbie.

Bureau heads, counsel and former employees of the Public Service Commission united in giving members of that body a clean bill of health. Several of them did suggest, however, changes in the Public Service law which would give the commission wider powers and stressed the need for more rather than less employees to carry on adequately its work.

Whether the commission has power to regulate the amount and kind of securities issued by a Public Utility company still remains a controversial point so far as Governor Pinchot is concerned. Citing the "mal opinions of the Attorney General's department during his former administration, commission members say they do not have such power. The Governor still insists they are wrong.

Rev. Curran Appears
The appearance of the Rev. J. J. Curran, Wilkes-Barre, before the Senate committee yesterday was looked upon as a move to steal the chief spotlight from the house investigation next week. The Rev. Curran had been announced as the chief witness for next week's House session only a few hours before he appeared and detailed his complaints against the Scranton-Springbrook Water company to the Senate body. Today considerable speculation exists regarding next week's developments. The Senate committee is going on the assumption that the Governor will appear next Monday and make his charges against the commission and the political activity of some Public Utility companies. Yet so far the Governor has not said that he will appear.

It is believed the initial sessions of the House committee will be devoted to hearing mass protests against Public Utility company rate increases. Occasionally a short session of the Senate or House reminds those about the Capitol that the legislature is duly and legally in session but otherwise all attention seems to center in probes, under way or yet to come.

HEAR TESTIMONY IN BRIDGE MURDER

were about to leave the Bennett apartment when he heard some shots. Rushing into the living room he found Bennett lying on the floor and Mrs. Bennett kneeling over him, hysterical.

Before Hoffman took the stand Senator James A. Reed, defense attorney told the jury the shooting was an accident.

Mrs. Bennett, clothed in black, wept during Hoffman's story of the quarrel and subsequent shooting.

Resume Testimony.

(International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, Feb. 27.—Discussion of the events leading up to the slaying of John G. Bennett by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle A. Bennett, in a quarrel over a bridge game, again held the spotlight in circuit court here today when Charles Hoffman, guest at the fatal bridge game, resumed the witness stand.

It was Hoffman's inability to recall where Bennett was standing when Mrs. Bennett shot him that caused an hour's bitter argument between Prosecutor James R. Page and Defense Attorney James A. Reed yesterday.

Page had endeavored to refresh the witness' memory with a transcript of his testimony at the preliminary hearing. Reed objected vigorously and the jury was sent out of the court room.

The bickering between the attorneys was resumed today but the court ruled that the transcript could be read by the witness. Page charged yesterday that Hoffman had changed his testimony and in the heat of argument threatened to drop the charge against Mrs. Bennett and file perjury charges against Hoffman.

After having read the transcript Hoffman was asked by Page: "What do you remember now about where Bennett was standing?"

"I don't remember," was Hoffman's reply.

It is on Bennett's position in the apartment that Page expects to prove that Mrs. Bennett deliberately shot him in the back. The defense will be that Bennett was shot accidentally by his wife during a struggle.

SMITHPORT, Pa., Feb. 27.—Arthur L. Kelly of Bradford today was acquitted in criminal court here of the murder of Arthur Daley.

The jury which returned the verdict included four women. The jurors had been out 22 hours before bringing in their acquittal verdict. Kelly was discharged by the court, packed his belongings in the county jail, where he had been held since last September, and returned to Bradford.

Charles Longstreth
In Kitten's RescuePolice Office. Has Perilous Time Getting Kitten From River Bank

Demonstrating a kindness for dumb animals, even to the extent of possible injury, Officer Charles Longstreth on Thursday afternoon rescued a little kitten from the bank of the Neshannock creek underneath the part of the Johnson building which hangs out over the creek at the Washington street bridge.

The kitten had been shut off by the water of the creek for two days and was continually crying on account of hunger and fright.

There was no means of getting to the kitten except from the walk along the side of the building, and Officer Longstreth secured a rope and tying it securely to the iron railing of the walk lowered himself down the rope, taking a basket with him.

Kitty, instead of taking kindly to the effort to rescue her, was apparently frightened and it was after considerable of a chase about the narrow strip of dry land at the place that he finally secured the kitten, placed it in the basket and had it hauled to safety.

Then the officer had the most difficult part of his act to perform and that was to climb the rope back up to the walk. After several unsuccessful trials he made the grade and got up. The incident was witnessed by many people.

Banker Urges New Standard

Declares Gold Standard Has Been Failure Due To Silver Depreciation

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A new money standard for the world as a means for restoring the world's finances has been proposed by J. F. Darling, a director of the Midland Bank.

Declaring that the gold standard has been a failure and that the cause of the present economic crisis is due to the depreciation in the value of silver, Darling advocates the establishment of a Super-Bank of the British Empire.

This bank, he says, would purchase the existing stocks of gold and silver held by the Government and banks that issue currency in the British Empire.

"These stocks," he says, "would be paid for in 'Rex,' which would be the Bank of Empire's monetary unit. It would be a purely book-keeping unit.

Instead of holding gold or silver against their currency notes, the issuing banks and Government would hold a balance at the Bank of Empire in 'Rex.' But there would be no change in the actual currencies.

"Gold would be purchased at a minimum price of one Rex for 113 grains of fine gold, which is the gold content of the sovereign.

"Silver would be purchased at a fixed rate of one Rex for 2250 grains of fine silver—that is a value would be one-twentieth of that of gold.

"This would raise the price of silver from 28 cents per standard ounce, to which it had fallen in the past few years, to about 94 cents per ounce.

"The cause of the present crisis is purely artificial—the unprecidented discrepancy between the relative value of gold and silver, and the remedy is to restore equilibrium by raising the price of the grotesquely under-valued silver by backing it with gold.

"While today gold has been accorded a value more than sixty times that of silver, the relative production of the two metals remains pretty much what it has been for the last four or five hundred years.

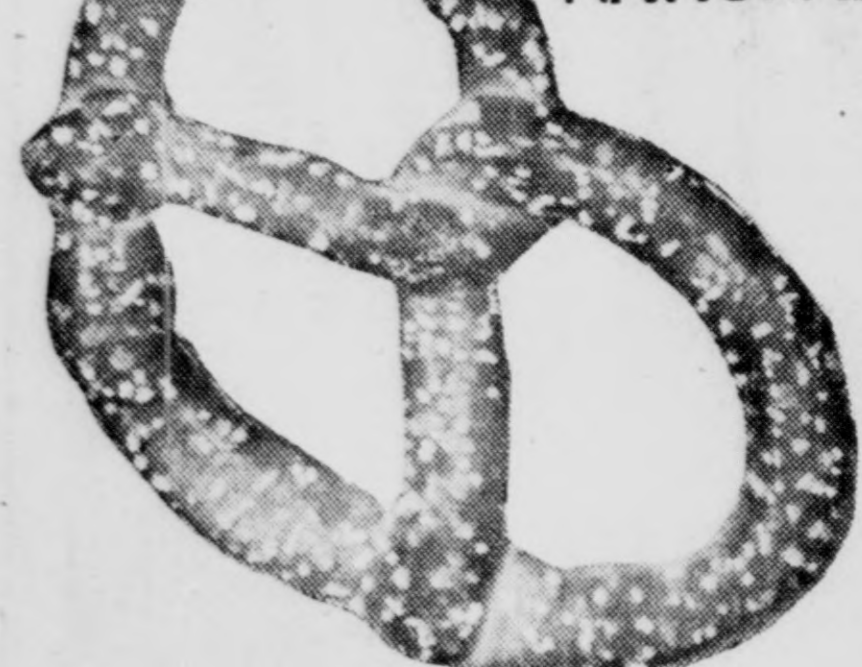

"This situation would be positively ridiculous were it not so tragic, for the purchasing power of 1,000 million people is directly and seriously affected thereby, and this in turn reacts upon the purchasing power of the other 1,000 million."

Chicago, Take Notice!

Valparaiso, Indiana, Crimeless, Would Show Big Neighbor How To Clean Up; Would Lend
Mayor, Police Chief

OFFICERS in autos patrol the streets and alleys at night.

STRANGERS caught on the streets after 10 o'clock are locked up, given a good breakfast in the morning and sent on their way.

By BONITA WITT
Central Press Staff Writer
VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 27.—Yes, sir! Believe it or not, here's a town just 40 miles from Chicago, that doesn't have a crime problem!

Many of the little towns on the outskirts of Chicago are overridden with the bad boys temporarily in the poor graces of Windy City police. Not so with Valparaiso.

Local county court doesn't average three criminal cases a month except when suits come here through change of venue from neighboring counties, where life is more hectic and gunplay more frequent.

No News in Robberies
There hasn't been a robbery big enough to rate even "a line" in the Valparaiso newspaper since last autumn.

How do the good folks keep their environs so crime free although they are almost within the shadow of Chicago's skyscrapers?

"That's easy," explains Robt. Felton, elderly police chief. "The hoodlums aren't wanted here and they know it. Whenever we spot them on the street we order them out of town and they go."

"You see, we also have a night patrol. Several policemen ride the streets at night in automobiles looking for suspicious persons. When they see a stranger, after ten o'clock at night, they lock him up, if he can't give a satisfactory account of himself. We also stop strange automobiles and have a look at their occupants."

No Underworld
"Our problem is fairly simple because we really want to keep our town free of crime. We don't have an underworld as a result of official tolerance."

This may be a hint for Chicago. Valparaiso's streets aren't brightly lighted and the alleys are spooky places after dark, but that doesn't HOODLUMS are ordered out of town as soon as they are spotted.

RESIDENTS of Valparaiso have great faith in their mayor and chief of police.

deter the eight members of the police force.

"I believe this patrolling of alleys is largely responsible for our ability to cope with crime despite our nearness to a large city," Mayor Harry Schenck says. "The police pick up the vagrants after ten o'clock and lock them in our jail, which is just an old fashioned hoosegow. In the morning we give them a breakfast and send them on their way. If they return too soon we give them harsher treatment."

Civic Pride Ardent

If the mayor and police chief are reluctant to give advice to Chicago the residents of Valparaiso are not. "What we are doing in a small way Chicago could do in a big way," one explains. "If Chicago really wanted to get rid of its gangsters and hoodlums, it could do so easily. It would not take long for Mayor Schenck and Chief Felton to turn the trick if they had free rein there."

There's only one cloud on Valparaiso's horizon—fear that its reputation for goodness will spread abroad and hoodlums will flock there to cultivate an air of respectability.

Experts Plan City Near Mexico Dam

(International News Service)
MONTERREY, Mexico, Feb. 27.—Instead of permitting a "mushroom city" to spring up around the site of the Don Martin irrigation dam, north of her, near the Texas border, the federal government is sending planning experts to lay out a model city.

Eight thousand hectares of land in the huge project have been cleared and will be thrown open to cultivation in January. An additional 7,000 hectares will be open to cultivation in March. The land is especially adapted to cotton. It is estimated that 10,000 laborers already are in the vicinity of the dam awaiting the distribution of lands. Many of them are Mexicans recently returned from the United States.

Has No Hands But Guilty Of Forgery

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Frank Greissmayer, 40, who has no hands, began serving a jail sentence for forgery.

"But how could I be guilty when I have no hands to write with?" Greissmayer protested when arraigned on a charge of obtaining a $700 loan from a finance company by forging a relative's name to a note.

An assistant state's attorney interrupted to introduce evidence that Greissmayer was convicted two years ago of a similar charge.

The defendant then pleaded guilty and entertained the judge with an exhibition of writing while holding the pen between his teeth.

Ohio Department Commander Of Vets Coming To Banquet

William C. Burbank Accepts
Invitation To Commander-
In-Chief's Dinner

Assurance that William C. Burbank, Department Commander of the State of Ohio, would attend the Commander-in-Chief's banquet and entertainment under the auspices of the Harry L. McBride Post, V. F. W. and their Auxiliary, were received last evening, when the visitation committee paid a visit to the Warren, O. Post.

The local veterans found a real live post at Warren, which is now in the midst of an energetic membership campaign, which is producing splendid results.

The post members stated that they would be present in large numbers at the banquet, in spite of the fact that it is the regular meeting night of the post.

This evening, members of the visitation committee will visit Youngstown Post No. 93, one of the oldest V. F. W. posts in the country, and expect to be enthusiastically received.

Next Tuesday evening, the Butler post will be visited, and a big time has been arranged for the local vets. It will be an open meeting night and a program of entertainment has been prepared for the occasion. Both the post and auxiliary will be largely represented at the meeting.

Describes Ideal Farm Community

Population Of Many Communities Too Small To Support Institutions

Declaring that many rural communities are too small to support adequate social institutions, Dr. C. J. Galpin, sociologist of the United States department of agriculture, described when he regards as the "ideal" farm community in its sociologic aspects, in addressing the American Country Life association conference at Madison, Wis.

"The small rural community," he said, "has little chance to attain high community standards of life. It is doomed on account of its smallness. I hold that a farm community of 100 farms and 100 families, like the 36 square-mile townships of Wisconsin and Iowa, is too small.

"A community of at least 1000 rural families is needed in order to maintain and support schools, libraries, hospitals, parks, playgrounds, churches, fire companies and the like. The total population of this community should be at least 5000 persons, and the minimum area about 100 square miles, the outer boundary of the community being five to eight miles distant by highway from the center of the town."

In discussing the effect of the decrease of farm population on country life, Doctor Galpin declared that although statistics show that the farm population is now 5,000,000 persons less than in 1910, the actual loss has been 12,000,000 persons, because in the 20-year period 1910-1930 there has also been lost to the cities the natural population increase on farms, approximately 7,000,000 persons. Doctor Galpin said that approximately 5,000,000 young men and women between the ages of 18 and 25 have gone from farms to cities in the last 20 years, and that about 60,000 "prosperous" farmers have moved from farms to cities during the period. It is the population shifts of these two groups, he declared, that are of greatest social importance in rural life.

By J. Carroll Mansfield

17. Benedict Arnold—Tryon Retreats

BEATING OFF THE AMERICAN MINUTE MEN THAT HOVERED ON THEIR FLANKS AND REAR, TRYON'S REDCOATS MARCHED ACROSS THE SOUTHWEST CORNER OF CONNECTICUT, LEAVING A TRAIL OF BLAZING BARN AND FARMHOUSES BEHIND THEM.

BUT BENEDICT ARNOLD RALLIED THE CONNECTICUT MILITIA AND AT RIDGEFIELD ON APRIL 27, 1777, CHECKED THE BRITISH INVADERS IN A BLOODY ENGAGEMENT. TRYON SAW NO COURSE LEFT FOR HIM BUT A HASTY RETREAT.

THE NEXT DAY THE STRICKEN REDCOATS FLED TO THE COAST, PURSUED ALMOST TO THEIR BOATS BY THE AMERICANS, WHO KEPT UP A CONSTANT, GALLING FIRE FROM BEHIND EVERY STONE WALL AND TREE.

CONGRESS COULD NOT OVERLOOK ARNOLD'S LATEST ACHIEVEMENT, AND WAS COMPELLED TO RAISE HIM TO THE RANK OF MAJOR GENERAL.

Interest Lacking In Floor Tourney

Owing to the fact that there is a lack of interest being taken in the proposed St. Mary's amateur floor tourney, there is a strong possibility that the tourney will not be attempted this year, according to word today from Business Manager Jockey Travers. All teams in the junior and senior classes must be registered by Tuesday of next week, this is the final time for filing. Unless 15 teams are secured the tourney will not be held.

Statesmen seem rather undignified when they give one another the lie, but they probably know best.

New Castle Starts To Prepare For Next Contest On March 7

Locals Have One Week To Practice Before Playing Second Round Tilt

With the victory over Ambridge high now history, the New Castle high school undefeated basketball team will turn its efforts towards Saturday evening, March 7, when the Coach Phil Bridenbaugh ball team will meet the winners of the Monessen-Bentleyville contest on the Pitt floor in the second game of the W. P. I. A. L. tourney.

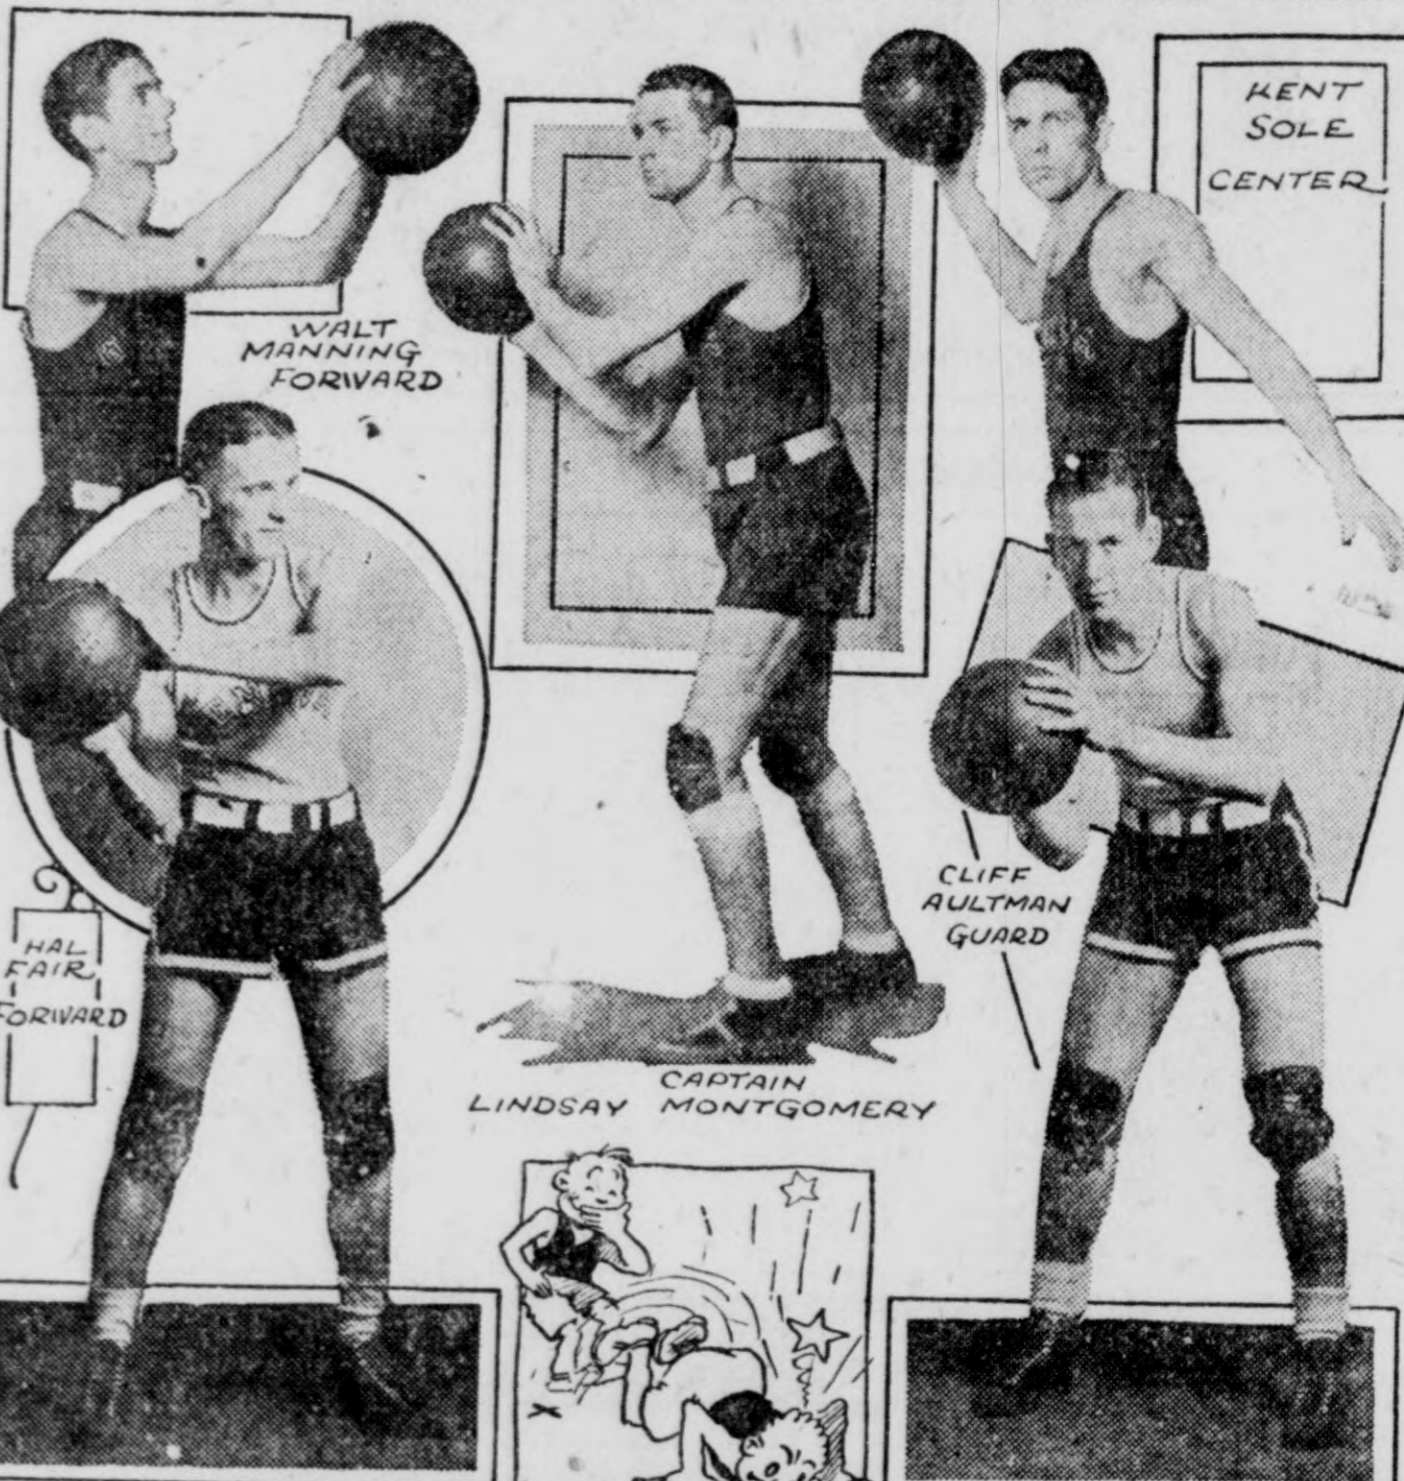

Due to the fact that New Castle is in a clash with the winner of the game between Monessen and Bentleyville, local fans will watch with interest the outcome of the battle between the two above mentioned teams on Monday night at Pitt Stadium.

Following their well earned victory over Ambridge high on Wednesday night Coach Phil Bridenbaugh deemed it best to give his players a day of rest and stated that he will start preparing his team for the second game this afternoon. The workout will probably be light. Due to the fact that there remains one week before the locals take the floor in the tourney, the local pentator will try to polish off those weak spots which he observed in the game Wednesday.

Geneva Team That Battles Titans Saturday In Important Tri-State Conference Game

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. Feb. 27.

When Geneva and Westminster meet here Saturday night in the closing contest of the year for the Titans, the Tri-State Conference championship may be settled for the season.

A victory for Westminster will give the Titans the title, while a victory for Geneva will tie the Bethany with Westminster.

The Covenanters have always been a thorn in the side of championship-aspiring quintets. Many times the Beaver Falls crew has won out over leaders in the league race.

And since the Loeffler-coached machine holds the only victory over the Titans this year, they will have the mental advantage Saturday night.

Aultman, the freshman star at Westminster fans look to Koche-ran and Douglass to do better against the Covenantors Saturday than they did at New Brighton a month ago. Hamas and Siljander are also showing great form in drills this week at forward, and Newton and Considine have also improved in offensive play. As a result, the Titans have six forwards available in case the starting two do not "click."

Graduate Manager Andy McDonald claims a sell-out house for tomorrow night's game. While all reserved seats are not as yet taken, there are telephone calls and letters coming in requesting reservations for the contest. The Bethany game drew the largest crowd of the year, but the natural rivalry between Geneva and Westminster should pack the Titan gymnasium.

Geneva, will of course be the man around whom the Covenantors will build their floor play. But Captain Montgomery, Manning, Fair, Sole, and Grahame are also among the best floor performers in the district, and will no doubt force the Titans to the limit. Sole at center has out-jumped every opponent this year, including Brownlee; while Montgomery and Aultman have checked opposing guards effectively.

Despite the fact that Geneva must play Allegheny tonight, the Beaver Falls outfit should be in the best of shape for tomorrow night's encounter. Westminster's layoff from Monday night may be harder to overcome than Geneva's three-game card for the week.

KEEPING IT HOT

Stove League Gossip

The sudden, tragic illness and death which removed Sam Dreyfuss, son of Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh Nationals' owner, may mean that the ball club will some day pass from control of the family.

Barney, now 66, had fully expected his own son to follow him as head of the Buccaneer band within a few years.

Sam was an only son and a great baseball enthusiast. As long ago as 1926 Sam began to learn the business, taking over the management of the club's financial and business affairs when his dad went to Europe.

As the years sped by the elder Dreyfuss was inclined more and more to rely on Sam's judgment, confidence of which Sam proved worthy.

With the passing of his son and heir apparent, Barney Dreyfuss has no obvious successor in his own immediate family circle. Barney Dreyfuss II, the late Sam's son, is only two years old.

"Sam's loss to the Pittsburgh club is a hard blow," said Manager Jewel Ens at Paso Robles, Pirate training camp, when he heard the news.

"His knowledge of players and their records was little short of amazing. He seemed never to forget any player and could tell instantly where most major and important minor league players were playing.

"Sam liked the game so well he often took part in training camp practice. That—and his ability—would have made him a smart ball club executive."

Carnegie Passers Topple East Brook

Safety Five Team Is Also Victorious By 41-5 Score Over Hickory Heights

Carnegie basketball team rung up its 26th victory of the season on Thursday night when the recreational center boys added the East Brook High Reserves to the victory roll by a 33-17 score. In the preliminary engagement the Safety Five was victorious again over the Hickory Heights team by a 41-5 count.

The East Brookers put up a hard battle but the Carnegie boys managed to outsmart their opponents. Vigali, Ross and Gallagher featured for the Carnegie team with Kendal, Steritz and Schuler the best for the East Brook quintet.

In the preliminary the work of DeGennaro and Briggs stood out for the Safeties while Kwiat and F. Freed looked good for the Hickory boys.

FIND STONE AGE VILLAGE
KONIGSBERG, Feb. 27.—Following the discovery in Cologne of a village dating from the Stone Age, the remains of an ancient settlement have now been discovered in the district of Wehlau, East Prussia.

A stone hatchet and some flint knives found there led to methodical excavations which have established that a pile-dweller's settlement existed on the spot some 4,000 years ago.

Saint Reserves Top Columbiana

Extra-Period Required As St. Mary's Reserves Take 28 To 25 Victory

The St. Mary's Reserves basketball team ran their victory string to 15 straight last night by defeating the Columbiana of the Youngstown Church League 28 to 25 in an extra period game played at Youngstown. The game was a nip and tuck race for the lead throughout the game.

The Columbiana led at the half 11 to 8. The Saints outscored the Youngstown boys in the second half to tie the score at 24-24 as the regular game ended. Babosky caged the basket that gave the locals the victory. Kroen played a whale of a game at center making five baskets, while Captain Huff at guard had a pair of field goals and played a fine guarding game. Ross was the best bet for the losers.

Tonight at the St. Mary's Auditorium the Reserves meet the West Pittsburgh quintet. The Reserves would like to book the Gersons, Ellwood City, New Wilmington, and Bessemer. Call Habib at 9090 or write to Manager Habib of Reserves at 8 East Washington street.

St. Mary's Trims Annadale 22 To 16

After a hectic ride through the hinterland of Butler county, which caused them to be about two hours and half late arriving at Annadale, the St. Mary's A. A. team finally reached their destination and succeeded in winning a 22 to 16 verdict over the fast Annadale team. The game was played last night. The Annadale girls' team beat the St. Mary's girls 13 to 10 in the preliminary game.

Pitt And Tech Battle Tonight

Pitt Letter Men Will Gather At Schenley Hotel For "Old Times" Sake

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—"Old times" in the full past of the University of Pittsburgh's athletic history will be recalled tonight as several hundred letter men gather at the Schenley hotel for their annual reunion and dinner. Coming from various parts of the country, but mostly from the tri-state district, the letter men, managers and captains of all Pitt teams since the start of athletics will be on hand to exchange greetings and listen to speakers.

Bert Smeyers is listed as toastmaster, with Dr. W. S. McElroy chairman of the committee on arrangements. His assistants included many familiar names in Pitt's athletic ho-ho roll, among them Ted Corbett, Lefty Hill, Andy Hastings, Norman McLeod and Butch Ochenschmidt.

Following the gathering, the guests will attend the basketball game at the Pitt stadium between the University of Pittsburgh tossers and their rivals of long-standing in athletics, Carnegie Tech. This is the second meeting of the two city teams this year. Pitt winning the first contest after hard battling 25-22.

OUTSELLING COMPETITION 2 to 1

Throughout 1930, Oldsmobile outsold each one of the seventeen cars in its price class in Lawrence County.

Throughout 1930, Oldsmobile sales in this vicinity were exceeded only by those of Chevrolet and Ford.

Throughout 1930, Oldsmobile outsold its nearest competitor—the car in fourth place—by a margin of nearly 2 to 1.

These comparisons, an accurate measure of public preference, are also a measure of public confidence in Oldsmobile. No other car priced near Oldsmobile enjoys such widespread popularity in Lawrence County . . . and no other car priced near the Oldsmobile for 1931 offers so many fine-car features at such a low price.

NEW YORK STOCKS
Flood Of Selling
Orders Hit Market

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—After starting the day at slightly higher prices, the market favorites ran into a flood of selling orders in the second hour today and were pushed back a point or two from the opening prices. A few of the high-priced specialties slipped off 2 to 6 points. The losses in this section of the list were quickly regained. The Utility stocks as a group held their ground. Radio was under selling pressure and dipped under 25, against yesterday's peak at 27 1/2.

Weakness in the Grain market induced selling of stocks in some of the outside points. Corn broke a cent a bushel to the lowest price of the year and in some of the western centers the banks were reported raising the margin on Wheat loans to 20 cent a bushel. Good reports continued from the Steel and Automobile industries as well as the Textile trades, where there has been an increase in demand for Cotton cloths.

Trading tapered off in volume as prices declined, and the selling wave appeared to reach its crest early in the second hour. After dropping off from 7 to 6 1/2, Bethlehem Steel rallied to 63, and similar recoveries were made in other speculative favorites. U. S. Steel at 150, ex-dividend, showed a gain of nearly a point above yesterday's close; Anaconda and Kennecott Copper were in good form, and Montgomery Ward moved up to 28 1/2 for a 1-point rise. Columbia Graphophone's 1-point rise to 12 1/2 in heavy trading was the feature of the cheap specialties. Near the noon period Consolidated Gas appeared ready to resume its advance, and United Corporation pushed ahead to 27 1/2, only fractionally below the year's peak.

URGES WIVES TO BEAR WITH HUSBIES

(International News Service)

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 27.—Judge William G. Thomas, of the Carbon county courts, has warned wives that they should "bear with husband's and not hale them into court" every time they become vexed or experience marital difficulties. The Judge says that court costs are too high and present conditions of unemployment call for more leniency on the part of spouses.

Honored by Soviet

A. L. Raskin, one of the American specialists now aiding the Soviet Government, has been elected a member of the Stalingrad Soviet. Under the Soviet constitution, all persons engaged in useful labor are entitled to vote and occupy, through election, government positions.

To Assist Mellon

Nominated by President Hoover for the post of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Arthur A. Ballantine, a native of Ohio who has been practicing law in New York for the past ten years, is shown in his office just after he had received the news of his nomination.

Mother India Takes a Ride

Independence Day in India was marked by Nationalist demonstrations in various parts of the country. In most places the disturbances were of the passive resistance type, but in Calcutta there were many cases of rioting. Picture shows some of the eighty-three women who were arrested in that city going into the "Black Maria" to be transported to jail. Notice the young child taking the jaunt with its mother.

Rising to the Occasion

Leaders in Peruvian Turmoil

The flame of revolt has again burst forth in Peru. What was at first supposed to be a local disorder has now spread over the southern portion of the country. Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro (left) has issued a call for 1600 volunteers to support the government against the rebels who are reported under the leadership of friends of the former president, Augusto B. Leguia (right) deposed by the revolution of last August and now in the national penitentiary at Lima.

Boy Of Three Recites
All Of Mother Goose

(International News Service)
MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Feb. 27.—"Barber, Barber, shave a pig," and Jerry Gregson, just past 3 years old is launched forth on the first of the 150 poems that he can recite without having the usual procedure of having an adult say the first line for him.

The tiny lad, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gregson of Marshalltown, has learned all the poetry during the past year, and not only recites the verses but explains what they mean. When Jerry is in the middle of "speaking a peace," and forgets momentarily, he does not stand and wrack his brain for the right words, but tells the meaning of the lines, the exact words of which he can not remember. This serves in recalling the necessary verse to him and he continues on with his poem.

A few months ago someone remarked to Mrs. Gregson, that Jerry must know a great number of verses, so the mother turned accountant and kept the list as the 3-year old went through his pieces. Two evenings were consumed and at the end of that time 150 poems had been fully recited—without prompting.

Someone gave Jerry a book for writing the other day—what he writes now doesn't make such good reading, but it'll mean something some day.

Sought in New Jersey
"Death" Mystery

A strange tale has started the police of New Jersey and Maryland in a search for Mrs. Florence Stader, of Rahway, N. J. Neighbors told of having seen Mrs. Stader's body wrapped in a blanket in the tonneau of a car driven by William M. Frazer (above), who is missing from his Rahway home.

You're the JUDGE

The court held against him. The judges reasoned thus: A faithful report in a newspaper of a debate in a legislative body containing matter disparaging to the character of a person spoken during the debate, is not actionable by the party whose character has thus been brought into question. Full publicity to the proceedings of legislative bodies is far more important to the community than the protection of anyone's character even though that person may suffer from it.

SEE COUNTY LAND

(International News Service)
SANDUSKY, O., Feb. 27.—Commissioners of Erie and Huron counties are searching the long lost Erie-Huron county line which they say has been hidden from sight by foliage and underbrush. Stating that it would take too long to cut into the foliage to find the old markers, the commissioners said the line will probably be picked up by an aerial survey.

The Decision

The court held against him. The judges reasoned thus: A faithful report in a newspaper of a debate in a legislative body containing matter disparaging to the character of a person spoken during the debate, is not actionable by the party whose character has thus been brought into question. Full publicity to the proceedings of legislative bodies is far more important to the community than the protection of anyone's character even though that person may suffer from it.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Just before somebody decides that they'll use a classified ad to find this column we're back in. Tripping lightly and all that sort of thing, lifting a bit of melody and wearing a pair of hot suspenders. Several reasons why the column hasn't appeared in a week, some of which centers around a building over near Bellefonte.

Not that anybody has called up the office and threatened to cancel their subscriptions if the column didn't appear instantly. Nothing of the sort. But one subscriber did admit that they always read the column before going to bed.

Not so sure about that crack. They also admitted reading the legal notices, classified page and the weather report.

Progress is simply burning herself up in the past week. The city is now repairing that spring buster over on East street. That large expanse of hole surrounded by concrete, which was at the intersection of East and North streets.

Met an interesting lad yesterday Chap named McCormick out on the Perry Highway who is past his ninety ninth birthday. Just a genial old boy who hasn't any advice to offer to anybody about how to live to be a hundred.

In his day he's seen a lot. Dig out your history of a century ago and compare things today with then, and imagine what this old chap has seen in his race down the pathway of life.

There's an exceptionally gooney kind of mud out on the dirt roads running off the Perry. Chummy sort of mud. Once it gets on your shoes it takes a chisel and a hammer to get it off, and as for getting a car through some of the side roads, it looks next door to impossible.

Ever since Bugs Baer pulled his famous crack about a Philadelphian shooting a mail man in mistake for a Confederate soldier, the Quaker City has been the butt of all the sleepy jokes of the year.

That may be the reason for blaming Philly for this one. Seems a native Philadelphian was sitting in a railroad station, partly asleep. Stranger walks in and sits down to wait for a train. Attempts to engage the N. P. in conversation. No sale.

Finally says, "what do you think of the president's plan in the unemployment situation?" "Howzat?" (Sleepily)

"I say, what do you think of the president's plan in the unemployment situation?"

Opening one eye part way, and stifling a yawn, the Philadelphian replies, "well what do you expect with McKinley in the chair?"

Met a professional man this morning who was bemoaning his luck in the unemployment situation. Seems that he was all caught up with his work, and the family is moving. The lady who runs things up his way (as they do in most well managed homes) decided that as long as he didn't have to go to the office, he could beat a few rugs.

And now the judge is using that same swing he once used to drop them over the middle field fence for Westminster College.

With this difference, nobody else gets a turn at bat in this game.

One of the brass buttoned defenders of the city's life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness has a new idea on how to keep warm. Says he's going to get himself a set of bloomers for these cold nights he has to swing a hickory out on the streets. And wants to know what size he will take.

Visited the famous trout spring in Bellefonte the other afternoon. Which is my idea of a real place to fish. There's so many big ones up there, they get in each other's road. Toss a little raw meat into the water, and thirty or forty trout ranging from ten to 28 inches in length make a lunge for it, with a resultant churning of the water.

No fishing is allowed there, but if it were, you'd have to bait your hook behind a tree. Hundreds of them, all sizes and designs, just floating around enjoying life, away from the fisherman's hook.

Lewis Warner Is Nearing Recovery

(International News Service) HAVANA, Feb. 27.—Lewis Warner, 22-year-old son of Harry M. Warner, motion picture producer, who has been seriously ill at the Anglo-American hospital, was reported nearing recovery today.

Man Walking Home Robbed Of Money

(International News Service) MONONGAHELA, Pa., Feb. 27.—George Mikulich decided to save money and walk home from a house of a friend he had been visiting. The walk cost him just $20. As he passed a fine dump, five men accosted him, searched his pockets and departed with two $10 bills.
